The Moratorium Is Here.
Another Planet.
Roses and Turnips.
Getting a New Lamb.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE MORATORIUM, such as it is, becomes part of history, and payment of war debts, to us, perhaps a part of past history.

President Hoover sent abroad a businessman, Andrew Mellon, and at least, there was some action.

The arrangement is not exactly what this country suggested. Germany must pay the money that France doesn't get, during the moratorium year, into the international bank, to be paid to France later. The bank may, meanwhile, lend the money on German railroad bonds. But France must get it, with interest, at the end of a year.

IT IS AS though Jones owed you a hundred dollars, asked a year's respite, and you said:

"All right, you need not pay me the hundred dollars until a year from now. But meanwhile, you must pay it to John D. Rockefeller, let him lend it to you, and guarantee ME that I'll get it back at the end of a year."

WHEN THE MORATORIUM news came, Wall street, SO anxious to be happy, decided that it was a little millennium, and put up prices. Then, as sometimes happens, Wall street began to think and prices went down, "Big Steel" selling 72,000 shares, and going from 104¾ to 98 at the close.

The Paris stock exchange was buoyant, and remained buoyant. The French had what they wanted. They are an efficient people.

THE UNITED STATES, by what President von Hindenburg calls "a magnanimous gesture," gives up some hundreds of millions of revenue, getting in exchange the satisfaction of helping the world in its difficulties.

The moratorium will mean, probably, increased federal taxes. But increased taxation can doubtless be postponed until 1933, and by that time the galled, jaded taxpayer may be feeling better.

WHEN THE AGREEMENT had been reached in Paris, following rejection by France of three other plans, according to Paris newspapers, there was a drinking of toasts in the Paris council chamber. Excellent champagne was provided, and, out of respect for United States' ideas, a large pitcher of orangeade.

Prohibitionists will regret to learn from reporters that, after all the toasts had been drunk, all of the orangeade was still in the pitcher.

JAPANESE SCIENTISTS at the Kyoto Astronomical Observatory have added another to our family of planets, circling 'round the sun, and going with it through space, Heaven knows where.

The new planet is no dwarf, for its diameter is 3,000 miles greater than that of the earth. It was discovered to the south of the "Snake Charmer constellations," about 100,000,000 miles from the earth.

This planet is another monument to the great Newton. It flies around the sun in its orbit, held in space by mysterious gravitation, in accordance with Newton's formula.

And there is something, call it "imponderable ether," or what you like, between the sun and the planets. No force could act through a vacuum.

MISS CAMILLA KELLY, of Memphis, Tenn., officially known as "Judge Camilla," in a sound speech says that in women misbehavior is "just a little worse than in men."

Judge Camilla says God holds women to a higher degree of responsibility, because they are mothers of the race. Men, she thinks, "have been a little deceived by their superiority complex."

MISBEHAVIOR in women is as shocking as the sight of a rose floating in a sewer. If it were a turnip or a potato it would not look so bad.

Women are the roses, men the turnips, and women ought to remember it. But they don't, when they drink cocktails, dress indecently, cultivate the use of profanity, drag jewels that foolish husbands give them through speakeasies, where gangsters are quietly taking notes.

A NEW KIND of war flourishes among our friends in Asia. On Japanese soil, Koreans have taken to killing Chinese, in violent mob uprisings. Eighty-two killed recently included three women.

Chinese, retaliating, destroy Korean irrigation works, ruining the rice fields.

Those that expect peace to cover the earth very soon are too optimistic. While mere difference of race breeds hatred, there can be no safe peace.

A FRENCH cartoon shows a lion and a lamb in a circus cage. The circus owner says: "Sometimes, they do not agree." Asked: "What do you do in that case?" he replies: "We get a new lamb."

Let us hope the United States will remember that, and not play the part of the peace lamb, since it must live among fighting nations.

THE VATICAN and the exiled King Alfonso will be interested in news from Spain. One dispatch tells of mobs demanding that Jesuit priests be expelled from the Spanish town in which the Jesuit order was organized, and seeking to burn Jesuit properties.

Another dispatch, from Barcelona, announces suspension of the Bank of Catalonia "because of economic depression." With anti-religious violence on one side, and Spanish bank failures on the other, King Alfonso, who learned American slang from Ambassador Moore, may be saying:

"It won't be long now."

TEXANS SEEN 450 MILES ON WAY

Plan to Refuel in Flight Over Alaska and Siberia; Escape Takeoff Disaster

BULLETIN.

SEATTLE, July 8.—(AP.)—At 9:30 a. m. (1:30 p. m., Pittsburgh time), an airplane believed to be the Forth Worth flying from Seattle to Tokio, was sighted over Prince George, B. C., 450 miles from Seattle.

SEATTLE, July 8.—(AP.)—A projected 5,100-mile nonstop refueling flight from Seattle to Tokio got under way at 3:57 a. m. (7:57 a. m., Pittsburgh time) today when Reg L. Robbins and H. S. Jones, Texas airmen, hopped off in quest of a $25,000 prize offered by a Japanese newspaper.

Their snow-white monoplane Forth Worth, loaded with 300 gallons of gasoline, took to the air after their second sprint down the runway of Boeing Field. Robbins, at the controls, got the plane up by "giving it the gun" at the end of the runway. Had it failed to rise at that moment there might have been a crackup.

TWO REFUELINGS

By refueling from their trimotored mother plane over Fairbanks, Alaska, and again over Siberia immediately after crossing the Bering Sea, Robbins and Jones expected to reach Tokio by Friday morning (Pacific time), or about 55 hours after their takeoff.

The plane headed directly northward for an inland course over British Columbia and Yukon territory on the way to Fairbanks. The refueling plane waited at the latter place.

Manned by J. J. Mattern and Nick Greener, also of Texas, the tri-motored craft will fill the tanks of the Fort Worth and then follow it across Alaska to Solomon. There the mother craft will pick up gasoline and strike out toward Siberia to make the last scheduled refueling.

WEATHER IDEAL

Weather conditions along the first part of the route were said by government meteorologists to be ideal.

Two courses have been routed on the Siberian side. If the fliers find favorable weather they will skirt the coast of Kamchatka Peninsula and then fly over the Kurile Islands to Japan. Otherwise they plan to journey around the Gulf of Anadir and then fly down the coast, but keeping inland about 100 miles.

Robbins and Jones figured it would take 15 to 17 hours to reach

'Dead' 9 Hours, Man Declares It 'Peaceful Sleep'

Father Aids Rescuers In Vain Effort to Save Student

Dr. A. E. Abbate stood for four hours early today, directing resuscitation efforts over the body of his son, Louis W. Abbate, 21, of 503 Paulson avenue.

At 4:30 o'clock he saw police and employes of the Mine Safety Appliances Company and the Duquesne Light Company give up the fight. The boy was pronounced dead—drowned in the Allegheny River above the Brilliant pumping station.

STRUGGLES IN RIVER

With Adam Scarano and William Gianatasie, neighbors, young Abbate went bathing in the river late last night. He was seen struggling in the water, but rescue efforts momentarily failed. George Lynch, of 7215 Baker street, recovered the body 10 minutes after Abbate disappeared beneath the surface.

Police and rescue workers were called and applied resuscitation methods under the direction of Dr. Abbate. Sixteen tanks of oxygen were used.

GIRL, 12, DROWNED

Stricken with a heart attack while swimming in a pool at Bradford Woods last night, Alberta Craft, 12, of Butler pike, Glenshaw, was carried from the pool and pronounced dead, according to the coroner's report.

The girl, who had been bathing with several companions, became unconscious after sliding into the water from a chute. She was pronounced dead by Dr. J. H. Smith, of Mars.

Canoeist Hears Voice Of Mother, 'Comes Back to Life'

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—Death is only a "peaceful, dreamless sleep. . . .A placid oblivion devoid of disturbance."

This belief was voiced today by William Dugan, 28. It was substantiated by a "first-hand" experience. Dugan insists he knows.

For he was "dead" for nine hours.

Dugan fell from a canoe into the waters of Laurel Lake, N. J. His head hit the side of the craft and he plunged to the bottom. Five minutes later his apparently lifeless form was dragged to the surface.

His body was blue and chilled. The heart had ceased beating and the pulse was stilled. There was no sign of life.

FORLORN HOPE

Physicians and nurses began resuscitation efforts as a forlorn hope. Blankets lined with hot water bottles, inhalators and hypodermic injections were brought into play.

For nine hours the rescuers worked. Then Dugan fluttered his eyelids—and breathed, brokenly at first and then normally.

He described his sensations today. He said:

"I was comfortable—just resting peacefully in space. There was a feeling of oblivion, of a long healthy sleep undisturbed by dreams. I felt impelled, however, to go somewhere . . . that I must rouse myself from the comfortable torpor.

MOTHER CALLS

"From a distance I heard my mother's voice calling me. I tried to answer her. Finally I opened my eyes."

Immediately after this plunge from the boat he fell to the bottom through a series of "brilliant lights" that dazzled his eyes, Dugan said. From then on, he "floated peacefully in the air until I heard my mother calling. He concluded:

"And then I snapped out of it."

RELIEF PLEA OF PINCHOT REFUSED BY PAYNE

Help Limited to Disasters Due to 'Acts of God;' Operators to Open Parley

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(A.P.)—Chairman Payne, of the Red Cross, informed Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, today his organization was unable to extend relief to children of striking coal miners of Western Pennsylvania.

His reply came just 24 hours before a group of mine operators was to convene with Secretary Lamont to discuss conditions in the bituminous industry preliminary to a possible general conference of miners and operators.

Gov. Pinchot had described the Western Pennsylvania situation as "a genuine calamity" and the Red Cross was asked to provide food for children in the strike area. Pinchot said they were "seriously underfed."

BALKED BY CHARTER

In his reply, Payne said the Red Cross was confined by its charter to relieving emergency disasters classed as due "to an act of God." He added:

"If the Red Cross should undertake to deal with disasters wherever and however they occur, it would speedily find itself unable to proceed with its real duties.

"The Red Cross cannot do everything."

Payne said the coal strike was the result of an economic situation prevalent in that industry for the last 10 years and "may continue indefinitely." He added there were other agencies, local and county, for providing relief in the strike area.

The conference of operators was called as a step toward rehabilitation of the industry, President Hoover, acting at the request of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, asked Secretaries Doak and Lamont to ascertain whether there was some common ground on which all elements might unite in a general conference. Lamont expects a dozen or more operators at tomorrow's conference.

PLAN TO PICKET MEET

Doak took the job of ascertaining the attitude of labor and Lamont that of sounding out the operators. The job of the Secretary of Labor was comparatively easy as a large element of labor in the industry is organized. The operators, however, are not fully organized and the Secretary of Commerce found it necessary to sound out individuals.

National Miners' Union officials have announced they intended sending a party to Washington to picket the conference.

Two previous investigations and conferences have been held. Suggestions of various kinds came out of the Federal Coal Commission inquiry in 1922, but few were carried out. Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, as secretary of

1,000 Large German Firms Aid Reichsbank

Breweries, Krupps Back Government In Credit Crisis.

By WALTER DIETZEL
International News Service.

BERLIN, July 8.—President Paul von Hindenburg today issued a decree authorizing the government to draw on the 500,000,000-mark ($125,000,000) credit guaranteed by the leading German industrial firms as a measure to bolster the government's credit.

The fund, to be borrowed abroad, is underwritten by the big breweries, the Krupp works, the dye trust and a thousand of the nation's strongest banks, industrial concerns and shipping firms.

GRAVE SITUATION

Action of private industry in coming to the rescue of the Reichsbank is taken as evidence of the gravity of Germany's financial situation. The action was announced by Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, at midnight, after it had become apparent during the day that the demand for foreign currencies continued strong despite the signing of the Hoover plan.

Withdrawals of foreign exchange in gold have been proceeding at the rate of several million dollars a day for some weeks.

OLD CITY HALL LODGER JAILED

Mrs. Helen Uptegraff, 60, self-styled "friend of the unemployed working girls," was arrested today on a charge of disorderly conduct when she refused to vacate the "Working Girls Home," which she had maintained in old City Hall, Smithfield street, for three months.

James E. Routley, clerk in the county commissioners' office, who, for months, has been trying to get the woman to vacate the property, caused the arrest. Five other women, housed in the building, packed their few belongings and left, but Mrs. Uptegraff, it is said, refused to go.

She pleaded to be allowed time to get her belongings and when this was refused said:

"You'll have to take me to jail. I've no place to go and no place to sleep."

Three months ago Mrs. Uptegraff was given permission to open a home for working girls. When it was found no girls were being cared for the lights were turned off, but Mrs. Uptegraff stayed.

Lindsey Assails Reno Divorce Mill System

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8.—(INS.)—Reno's system of divorce "is that of a slot machine," according to Judge Ben Lindsey. He said:

"You put in the papers and out pops a divorce. However, it is doing some good, in forcing other states to realize the need of revising divorce and marriage codes."

The former Denver jurist and advocate of companionate marriage has just spent a week in the divorce city.

Air Tour Flier Crashes Into Hill, May Die

YORKVILLE, O., July 8.—(AP.)—Charles Sugg, contestant in the national air tour, was injured seriously today in the crash of his ship against a hill bordering on the airport here, overnight stop of the air tourists.

The pilot was buried in the wreckage of his ship. When he was extricated and taken to a hospital at Martins Ferry it was learned he suffered a probable fracture of the skull, and internal injuries.

Sugg was one of the first group of air tourists to begin today's flight to Cleveland.

Twelve of the planes in the tour got away in the group with which he was flying. The remainder remained here until noon.

Another member of the air touring group was taken to a hospital today, Z. D. Granville, of Springfield, Mass., a time checker with the tour, being taken to Wheeling, W. Va., for an operation for acute appendicitis.

BALDWIN BEATS ANNEXATION

Annexation of those parts of the Fourth and Eighth wards of Baldwin Township which adjoin the Twenty-ninth Ward of Pittsburgh, was voided by the Superior Court in Philadelphia today.

The decision reverses a ruling by Quarter Session Court of Allegheny County.

Residents of the district voted last May, by a 49 majority, for annexation, the principal reason being alleged overcrowding of the schools.

Objecting residents appealed to Quarter Sessions Court, alleging the voting had been conducted illegally. They also presented a protest from the State Council of Education which held the change unnecessary and declared the school district would not benefit.

Today's decision, written by Judge Linn, ruled the annexation illegal because approval of the Education Council had not been obtained.

President Judge Trexler and Judge Keller dissented.

Mrs. Hoover Will Christen 'Akron'

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(INS.)—The Navy's new giant dirigible "Akron" will be christened by Mrs. Herbert Hoover on August 8 at Akron, O., it was announced at the White House today.

Auto Gas Kills Child Riding With Father

COLDWATER, Mich., July 8.—(AP.)—Harry Raybuck was driving his automobile home to Detroit yesterday, unaware that monoxide gas had killed his 3-year-old daughter, Elsie Lou, in the rear of the car. He discovered her body when he stopped for gasoline. Three of his other children were found near death, but were revived.

The fumes had seeped through the floor board from the exhaust which had been punctured by a stone.

Sir Oswald Mosley Quits Labor Bench

LONDON, July 8.—(AP.)—Sir Oswald Mosley, one time known as the millionaire Socialist, formally joined the opposition to Prime Minister MacDonald's government today, surrendering his seat on the Labor benches for one on the Conservative backbenches.

Hoover May Speak At Yorktown Fete

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP.)—President Hoover is giving favorable consideration to an invitation to speak at the sesquicentennial of the Battle of Yorktown, October 16 to 23.

While his presence at Yorktown will depend entirely on conditions in Washington, White House officials believe he will be able to make an address on one of the celebration days.

DAVIS LEASES CHESTER HOME

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Political strategy is seen behind an announcement made today by Senator James J. Davis that Mrs. Davis has leased an estate in Chester County, Pa., for a summer home.

Since both United States senators from the Keystone state at present have residences in Pittsburgh, it is taken for granted here that the junior senator intends to make the Chester County home his legal residence when he comes up for re-election in 1933.

The family will take possession of their new home on Saturday. The property is known as the Miller farm, being owned by Mr. and Mrs. Phillipus Miller. It is 17 miles from Philadelphia on the Newtown road, two and a half miles from Devon and four and a half miles from Wayne.

The residence, built approximately 150 years ago, has been brought up-to-date. It is a 15-room country house of stone construction, on a 20-acre tract.

Senator Davis, in his announcement, stresses the fact that the property has been leased in order to place his children in agricultural surroundings, which he insists they should enjoy as a means of supplementary education.

Mate Divorces His 'Meal Ticket' Wife

Ralph R. Curry, of 5611 Rural street, was granted a divorce yesterday from Mary Bell Curry, of Tarentum, by Judge Samuel H. Gardner.

Curry charged that his wife told him she "married him for a meal ticket." They were married in January, 1906, and separated in March.

Rejected Mourner Shoots Up Hearse

WADENA, Minn., July 8.—(AP.)—Charles Mulbradt wanted to be a pallbearer but was rejected because he appeared in overalls. So he shot up the hearse during the funeral services at the cemetery.

Milbradt was held to await district court action on a charge of destroying property. Mourners caused his arrest.

Mystery, Hysterics Mark Actress' Return Home

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP.)—Although Evelyn Wilson, missing actress for whom the police have searched since last Sunday morning, is home again and her mother says she is all right, police are still in the dark about her disappearance.

Policemen were in the Wilson apartment for two hours this morning and talked with the girl's mother but they did not see Miss Wilson. Her physician has refused to allow her to see anyone until a hysterical condition has improved. The physician did not know where she had been.

DRYS AND FOES RAISE HUGE FUNDS FOR ANNUAL BATTLE

FACTIONS GIRD FOR BITTER CAMPAIGN

Money Pours in for Fight On Prohibition as Slump Hits Two Major Parties

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Although both major political parties are reported to be finding the business of raising funds somewhat difficult, expenditures in the perennial battle over prohibition are proceeding at a boom-time rate, reports on file with the clerk of the House today disclosed.

With both the drys and anti-drys girding for a long fight in the 1932 national campaign, it is estimated that more than $2,000,000 will be spent in the next 12 months.

The most ambitious new movement launched by either the prohibitionists or their opponents is the 247-city campaign of the Allied Forces for Prohibition, headed by Daniel A. Poling, of New York.

$350,000 CAMPAIGN

Undaunted by the task of financing the drive, Dr. Poling and his cohorts have started a movement which, according to his estimate, will cost about $350,000 between now and July 1 next year.

The Anti-Saloon League also is expanding its organization for the 1932 campaign. Although no estimate of total cost is made, it is expected to exceed $500,000.

Under the expansion plan of this body, offices will be maintained in every state of the Union at a minimum estimated expense of $10,000 a year. The organization campaign is to be carried also into local communities.

There are scores of other dry organizations. The political campaign committee of the Anti-Saloon League in its report to the clerk of the House, showed receipts of $7,446 during the first six months of this year, with no campaign on. The Prohibition National Committee raised more than $2,500 last year, and the W. C. T. U. is maintaining an active organization.

BIG ANTI-DRY FUND

During the first six months of the present year the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment raised $230,000, which amount is expected to be sharply increased during the campaign year.

More than 30 anti-dry organizations are active in various parts of the country. During 1929 the Congressional Districts Modification League received over $30,000 in nine months, and the Federal Dispensary Tax Reduction League received over $15,000 during 1929.

To the funds of the widely known organizations must be added expenditures of individuals in out-and-out dry fights over referendums and in contests for political office. An outlay of $2,000,000 in the next year appears conservative.

There will be no respite in the fight. Leaders on both sides declare that the next year will see the most extensive fight over prohibition waged since adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Fairbanks and about six more to get to Nome.

Robbins and Jones will not be eligible to win the $25,000 put up by Seattle businessmen for a non-stop air trip between Seattle and Tokio as they will be refueling outside a radius of 50 miles of the two cities. They said they might, however, install additional fuel tanks and try flying back again, non-stop, for the Seattle prize.

SECOND-HAND PLANE

The Fort Worth has a 225 horse power Wright motor that has run 1,200 hours. The plane is a Lockheed Vega and has been flown 550 hours. The fliers purchased it second hand. It has a cruising speed of about 95 miles per hour. The machine is not equipped with radio.

Jones will do the navigating and Robbins the piloting, but the navigator will take the controls occasionally to rest Robbins.

Food, water, charts, navigating instruments, blankets, life-saving rubber jackets, fishing tackle and a rifle were stored in the navigator's compartment.

The aviators' food supply consisted of friend chicken and sandwiches for two days and emergency rations, including beans, rice, tea, bacon and chocolate. Neither cigarets nor cigars were carried as neither man smokes.

Fog Fails to Balk Refueling Plane

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, July 8.—(INS.)—After working all night, James Mattern and Nick Greener, pilots of the tri-motor plane which will refuel the Fort Worth, trans-Pacific monoplane of Reg. L. Robbins and H. S. Jones, were awaiting the arrival of the fliers, who took off from Seattle this morning.

Mattern and Greener arrived here late yesterday after being forced down several times on their flight from Edmonton, Canada. Greener said:

"Flying conditions were fine, but then the fog closed in on us and we had to change our course several times.

"We took off from a lava bed on the Nash River and took the tops of two trees with us when we did.

"After we got to White Horse everything was fine and we knew where we were."

The huge ship will take to the air with a full load of gasoline, Mattern at the controls, as soon as the Fort Worth is sighted, and will refuel the Texas fliers' ship to its capacity of 419 gallons.

Helene Zemer, 22, spent part of her twenty-second birthday shoplifting yesterday, it was testified in Morals Court today, where she and Helen Gardner, 25, were held for court trial charged with larceny.

The girls came from Johnstown on Sunday, they said. When arrested, it was testified, they had about $100 worth of wearing apparel stolen from three stores.

Said Helene Zemer:

"Yesterday was my birthday and I wanted some nice things to wear."

labor, called a conference, but without results.

RED PERIL CITED

Pinchot's letter to Payne said there were no state funds available for relief and added "local resources were either exhausted or otherwise out of reach." The letter read:

"I know the situation in Western Pennsylvania could scarcely be worse and probably would not be as bad if a great natural calamity had visited that region."

It stated that Communist agitators were informing miners and their families that "the government is to be held responsible" for their plight, and added:

"The consequence naturally is great bitterness toward American institutions grafted upon young lives at a time when such impressions are naturally deepest and most enduring."

Regarding Pinchot's assertion that the Pennsylvania state budget included no provision for relief, Chairman Payne later said:

"Pennsylvania is the second state in America in wealth and industry and it seems to me that what needs exist should be cared for by the state."

NEW DISORDERS IN COVERDALE MINE STRIKE

3 Women and 2 Men Jailed In Spurring Paraders to Make Attack on Workers

Three women and two men were arrested this morning when disorder broke out during a parade of striking miners at Coverdale.

Deputy sheriffs said the five attempted to foment an attack upon working miners who were passing the line of march on their way to work.

The prisoners gave their names as Mary Patella, Katie Gregorvich and Jennie Ametski, of Coverdale, and Paul Kopsky and Alex Cohert, of Pittsburgh.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park today ordered Herbert Reel, deputy sheriff, and Thomas Myerscough, admitted radical labor agitator, held for the grand jury on charges of manslaughter under $2,500 bail each as a result of the fatal rioting at a Wildwood mine June 22.

Myerscough and Reel were recommended for manslaughter trials by a coroner's jury in an inquest yesterday.

Pete Zigarac, a miner, was killed, 12 others were injured and 42 arrested after deputy sheriffs and strikers clashed at the mine.

Guns of Deputies Balk Bombing of Miner's Home

ST. CLAIRSVILE, O., July 8.—Fifty shots were fired by deputies, stationed in a miner's home at Maynard, to ward off an attempt to blow up the house. The guards reported today that three men were seen crawling in the underbrush when the shooting began. The men escaped. Sheriff Howard Duff said he had been tipped the house was to be dynamited.

Accused of stoning automobiles carrying working miners, three men were arrested at the Provident mine of the Clarkson Coal Company today. As the result of the trouble, Prosecutor Paul Waddell has asked Pittsburgh immigration authorities for an inspector to investigate with a view to deporting aliens arrested in the mine trouble area.

W. H. Marshall, immigration director of the Pittsburgh district, today said he had received instructions from the Department of Labor to investigate the status of nine aliens arrested in mine trouble at St. Clairsville, with a view to deporting them.

Miners' Car Target For Stones, Bullets

WELLSBURG, W. Va., July 8.—Gunfire and stones greeted an automobile loaded with miners en route to Gilchrist mine here today, resulting in injury to one man. Warrants will be sworn out for the attackers.

The West Virginia-Pittsburgh Coal Company today announced intention of resuming operations tomorrow at Colliers, the first mine to be closed by the strike.

ference—that of the ministers—scheduled for the following week.

Invitations to this conference of ministers were issued to the interested powers, including the United States, last night by the British government. The suggestion has been made that Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson may attend for the United States, although it is known that he is scheduled to go to Paris and Berlin before he comes to London.

POLITICAL ISSUES

The financial experts' conference will deal with the purely financial problems left unsolved by the Franco-American agreement on the Hoover debt moratorium proposal. The conference of ministers will be called upon to thresh out the much more significant political issues of purely European concern left open by the Franco-American accord.

One of the main issues at this conference is expected to be the British chancellor of the exchequer, Philip Snowden's, firm stand against waiving the British share of the "guaranty fund" provided under the Young plan in event Germany declares a moratorium.

The French delegates also are expected to revive the political demands which France was unable to put through in her negotiations with the United States. These demands, British political circles were reliably informed today, now center about the French desire to kill off the proposed German-Austrian customs union, and a demand that Germany build no more of the "vest pocket" cruisers.

U. S. TO SEND OBSERVER

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Acting Secretary Castle, of the state Department, announced today that the American government would send an observer to the technical experts' committee meeting in London, which will work out details of the debt moratorium.

Meanwhile, assurance from President Hoover that the intergovernmental debt moratorium is not to be an entering wedge for further cancellation of European war debts to the United States was requested today by Senator Capper (Rep.), of Kansas.

While an overwhelming majority in Congress appears to be ready to approve a joint resolution backing up the Hoover debt plan, it is also apparent that an overwhelming majority is opposed to cancellation of the European debts to the United States.

Senator Capper, a Republican stalwart, expressed general sentiment when he said cancellation of these debts would be "an outrage upon the American tax payers."

FLOG CHILDREN IN U. S. JAILS, QUIZ SHOWS

Wickersham Group Scores Treatment of Delinquents; Urges States Handle Cases

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP.)—Criticism of the federal government for placing its youthful lawbreakers on the same basis as hardened criminals and an arraignment of conditions under which child offenders are confined was made today by the now disbanded Wickersham Commission.

A report to the President on "Child Offenders in the Federal System of Justice" described bits of harsh disciplinary treatment accorded minors and asserted many of the jails in which they are kept "present a situation of filth and misery impossible to convey."

The commission recommended the treatment of juvenile delinquency be delegated almost entirely to the states.

CHILDREN FLOGGED

In some institutions, the report said, flogging is not infrequent, while in others, calisthenic drills to the point of exhaustion, "torture" positions, shackling, drenching with streams of cold water, and confinement on bread and water have been in vogue. At the federal industrial reformatory in Chillicothe, O., the report said confinement to the guardhouse for even minor offenses was frequent as a disciplinary measure. The report added:

"A few minor offenses noted in the records as punished by from three to six days in the guardhouse were possession of a 2-cent stamp; talking in mess line; concealing an apple in bunk; kicking a refuse can; stealing five eggs from the kitchen."

CHILLICOTHE SCORED

The Chillicothe institution was described as "in poor repair, crowded and not fireproof." The report said further:

"The kitchen and dining room facilities are inadequate. Mess is served twice to accommodate all, which means in bad weather men stand in rain and cold waiting for service. Floors in both kitchen and mess hall cannot be scrubbed as they are so porous that water would seep through to food supplies in the basement. Hospital space is crowded and inadequate, clothing is very poor. Boys sent from warm climates suffer greatly from exposure."

Discussing the Washington state reformatory, at Monroe, at which some convicted federal juveniles are confined under contract, the report said discipline often took the form of diet restriction. Correction cells were said to be kept in total darkness and young boys sometimes forced to sleep on wooden planks, ordinarily without bedding and sometimes for 10 days at a time.

MICKEY WALKER PARTY AIRED

NEW YORK, July 8.—(INS.)—New Year's even high jinks in the Rumson, N. J., home of Mickey Walker, recently resigned middleweight champion and at present contender for heavyweight honors, were revealed today in an affidavit filed in Brooklyn Supreme Court by Mrs. Sally M. Winn.

Mrs. Winn, seeking an order for the civil arrest of Laverta McCormack, a dancer, in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit, charged that red-haired Laverta undressed to her lingerie right before Mickey and her husband, Herbert Winn.

Mrs. Maud Walker, divorced wife of the ring champion, supported Mrs. Winn's action with a lengthy and sizzling affidavit about the doings at Mickey's house that New Year's.

Mrs. Winn, in her suit, charges that Laverta stole the affections of her husband, and seeks $100,000 damages. Laverta is now the wife of Charles Goudiss, stock broker, of Spring Lake, N. J.

HILAND TAXICAB GRANT FOUGHT

The hearing on the application of the Hiland Cab Company for a certificate of public convenience before the Public Service Commission here today was enlivened by a tilt between N. R. Congleton, vice president of the proposed new company, and Attorney A. C. Robertson, counsel for the Parmelee Transportation Company.

Congleton and Robertson clashed over the introduction of statistics tending to show in metropolitan Pittsburgh there is on cab for every 36,000 population. Robertson vigorously opposed such testimony. Commissioner Samuel Walker met Robertson's appeals for a ruling with silence.

Fred W. McCulloch, president of the Dow Drug stores; E. W. Ennis, of the Frank B. Saupp Company, slated to be president of the new company; Clare B. Willets, investment securities broker; H. W. Highby, manager of Center avenue apartments, and former public relations director of the Yellow Cab Company, and Fred Lentz, of Kaufmann's Department Store, were other witnesses.

The Hiland company's application also is opposed by the City of Pittsburgh.

500-Mile-an-Hour Planes Predicted by Doolittle

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP.)—If recent predictions of men who ought to know come true, it won't be long before men beat the birds at their own business.

Last week James H. Doolittle, former Schneider Cup winner, predicted that shortly the general cruising speed of commercial planes would by increased to 200 miles an hour and that within a few years the figure might be raised to 500.

At a dinner for the world girdlers, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, in Washington Monday night, F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war for aviation, predicted that man would soon fly so fast that he would be able to keep pace with the sun around the world.

And Monday Capt. Frank Hawks, holder of the trans-continental air speed records in both direction, predicted that within a couple of years regular 12-hour service would be in operation between the Pacific and the Atlantic.

Mellon Jovial Starting Holiday With Family

NICE, France, July 8.—(AP.)—Secretary Andrew W. Mellon, of of the United States Treasury, somewhat worn from his arduous negotiations at Paris and London, arrived here this afternoon for the vacation which he had put off until France and the United States could agree on the application of President Hoover's moratorium.

Less taciturn than while he was in Paris, he disclosed that he does not expect to see Col. Henry L. Stimson here unless the American Secretary of State should receive some message from Washington which would change his present plans. Mellon said:

"I'm sailing for home in two weeks. I've been away from my family for so long that I'm going to stay here with them just as long as I can."

He smiled when his son, Paul, who had come down from Paris with him, pointed to the crowd which awaited them at the railway station and said:

"Look, not a necktie in the lot."

When the representative of the city of Nice moved to chase away a battery of photographers training their cameras on the Americans, Mr. Mellon motioned them to come on. He said:

"I've been photographed so many times in Paris that I don't object any more unless you wake me up in the middle of the night."

He and his son went from here to Beaulieu, whence they motored to the Mellon villa at Cap Ferrat. Mr. Mellon's daughter, Mrs. David Bruce, and her husband, met them at Beaulieu.

WORLD CONGRATULATES JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, 92 TODAY

DONATES DIMES TO SERVANTS ON ESTATE

Follows Daily Routine as the Family Gathers for Usual Reunion; To Taste Cake

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

POCANTICO HILLS, N. Y., July 8.—John D. Rockefeller, the grandfather of American big business, will have his cake today—and eat it, too.

He was 92 years old, and it was happy birthday for the oil pioneer. He was in perfect health. His children and grandchildren were gathered around him. He had a plentiful supply of shining new dimes to distribute.

There was only one cloud looming on his horizon. An overcast sky threatened his daily round of golf. He has hardly missed his nine holes on the golf links on his birthday—or any other day—since before the era of gasoline stations.

RISES EARLY

Rockefeller was up before 7 a. m. today—as usual. He took a brisk walk in his Japanese gardens—as usual. Then he went through the servants' quarters of his 8,000-acre estate here and distributed those dimes. Each presentation was accompanied by a brief friendly word.

There was a library of messages from all parts of the world wishing him many more years of birthdays. He listened with brightened eyes as his secretary read them. A reading of the newspaper followed.

There were birthday presents awaiting him as Rockefeller went in to breakfast. The list was not made public, but on the very highest authority it was learned the gifts included a set of golf clubs as shining new as his own dimes.

JOVIAL AT MEAL

Surrounded by his family, Rockefeller was in jovial mood at breakfast. His meal was the same careful diet of any other day. They said he celebrated the occasion by an additional glass of milk.

And tonight he will deviate slightly from the dietary path to taste some of his own birthday cake.

A reading from the Scriptures followed breakfast.

Then came the yearly festivity of everybody playing numerica—Rockefeller's favorite pastime. It is a card game which might be described as competitive solitaire. Rockefeller won—not because they let him—but because he is an expert.

Members of his family present included Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., their daughter, Abby, her husband, David Milton; 3-year-old Abby Milton, and five grandsons of Rockefeller, John D. 3rd, Laurance S., Winthrop, David and Nelson A. Rockefeller, and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

TAKES NOON NAP

An automobile drive around the estate and his regular noonday nap were on the schedule.

It was almost like any other day in the life of Rockefeller—except that his smile was broader through the day.

In a birthday message to the world, Rockefeller said:

"These occasions offer me a very welcome opportunity to express my gratitude to the many, many friends who have shown their kindly regard to me and to wish them and theirs and all the world a large measure of health and contentment, which are the basis of real happiness."

PLOT CHARGED TO VATICAN

ROME, July 8.—(AP.)—Italian newspapers have resumed their editorial campaign against the Vatican, Lavoro Fascista leading the way with a charge that the Catholic Action organization plotted a counter-revolution against the Fascist state.

Popolo D'Italia, edited by Premier Mussolini's brother, Arnaldo, prints another editorial today supporting the government in its controversy with the Pope, and relations between the church and state appeared on the whole to have reached a point where negotiations for the moment are extremely difficult if not impossible.

In government circles it is admitted that resumption of conversations with the Holy See is a problem and it is understood to be the premier's intention to delay for a week or two his reply to the week-end papal encyclical "Concerning Catholic Action."

POST AND GATTY TO TOUR U. S.

NEW YORK, July 8.—(INS.)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, round-the-world fliers, will begin a transcontinental air tour of the United States with their plane Winnie Mae next week upon their return from Oklahoma, it was announced today by the National Broadcasting Company.

The tour is expected to take six weeks and will include New England, a route to the Pacific coast and will probably be concluded with a course which will take them back through the South.

The famous fliers will give a course of lectures on aviation at the various airports.

Innumerable invitations have been received from cities which wish to be included in the itinerary. The list of cities to be visited has not as yet been definitely decided upon.

CAROL REFUSES TO LET SON VISIT HELEN

Society Stirred as Former Queen Is Ignored on Guest List for Royal Marriage

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 8.—(AP.)—Queen Helen, already shorn of her royal prerogatives, today saw her personal rights fading under the hand of King Carol.

Shortly after her chamberlain announced she would spend the summer at Constanza with Crown Prince Michael, Carol issued a proclamation denying the truth of the statement. His words were taken to mean that the boy would remain in Bucharest with his father.

GUESTS LISTED

The exact effect of the King's pronouncement was in doubt. At any rate, it produced an unfavorable impression in society circles and was the subject of much comment.

Queen Helen was not included in the list of guests for the wedding of Princess Ileana and Archduke Anton at Sinaia on July 26. All other members of the royal family have been invited, but her name was omitted without a reason being given.

The guests include King Alexander and Queen Marie of Jugoslavia; former King George and Queen Elizabeth of Greece; Grand Duchess Cyril and her daughter, Princess Yira; the Prince and Princess of Hohenzollern, the Prince of Leinigen, the princesses of Hohenloe, the Infante and Infanta of Spain, Premeir Jorga, the president of the Chamber and Senate and other dignitaries of the state and the church.

THREE-DAY CELEBRATION

King Carol and the Prince of Hohenzollern will be witnesses for Princess Ileana. Archduke Anton's witnesses will be his father, Archduke Leopold Salvator, and the Count of Guelf.

The festivities will last from July 24 to July 26. The principals will give congratulations and gifts at the Palace of Pelesch on the first day, a grand banquet and reception will be held on the second and the marriage ceremonies, civil and religious, will take place on the morning of the third.

After a wedding breakfast, the bride and the bridegroom will motor to Queen Marie's castle at Bran, Transylvania, where they will spend a month's honeymoon. They will make a tour of the country, visiting the royal castles, and take up their residence at Munich in the castle of the Infanta of Spain.

Newport Gem Theft Suspect Arrested

NEWPORT, R. I., July 8.—(AP.)—Jason Evans, of New York City, wearing the garb of a butler, was in jail charged with the robbery of jewelry valued at several thousand dollars. Police said they recovered the jewelry in Evans' room and that it had been taken from the summer legation of the Greek minister and Mme. Charlombos Simopoulos, and from the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Thomas, of New York.

Boxer to Marry Divorcee Despite Family, Manager

RENO, Nev., July 8.—(AP.)—Despite parental objections and asserted protests of his manager, Max Baer, young California heavyweight boxer, plans to marry Mrs. Dorothy Dunbar Wells, former actress, here tonight.

Baer and Mrs. Wells met in Reno several months ago when she was here to obtain a divorce from Jaime S. de Garson, attache of a foreign legation in London.

"Why she's old enough to be Maxie's mother."

This was the exclamation of Mrs. Dora Baer in Oakland, Cal., yesterday when informed that her son was to marry Mrs. Wells.

The fighter, a former butcher boy, is only 22. Max's mother asserts Mrs. Wells is 38. They have not yet obtained their license to wed.

Friends said the fighter's manager, J. Hamilton Lorimer, of San Francisco, objected to the marriage and that Baer had asked Lorimer to place a price on their four-year contract.

GRAND JURORS MAY RESUME FOOD QUIZ

Reed Won't Deny Further Action Is Contemplated If Developments Warrant

The June grand jury may probe further into the operations of the City Supplies Bureau and reported irregularities in other departments of city government, it was learned today.

Although the grand jury was dismissed yesterday by Judge James H. Gray until July 30, it is said to be almost certain that should subsequent events warrant it, the quiz might be carried further.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park said he does not know of anything at the moment to warrant a statement that the investigation will be reopened. Assistant District Attorney Earl F. Reed, in charge of presenting data before the grand jury, would not discuss the subject, nor would he deny if circumstances eventually warranted it, a further probe would be sought.

'MISSING LINKS'

Considerable comment was heard regarding the statement on the grand jury's presentment about the payment of commissions to obtain city contracts.

The bringing of further indictments, it was reported, was frustrated because of "missing links" in the evidence. This is said to have been true of reports of large bank deposits having been revealed before the grand jury.

John D. Houston, wholesale grocer, whose letter to City Council started the probe, declared that the findings of the grand jury have created an unusual opportunity to clean up Pittsburgh's municipal government.

CHANCE FOR CLEANUP

The disclosures made regarding the methods used in city purchases fully warrant an uprising of the taxpayers at the fall election, Houston declared. He said:

"The citizens of Pittsburgh as a result of the investigation by the excellent grand jury are now fully and officially informed of the character and conduct of those who have been entrusted with the handling of public funds. Property owners who have been struggling to meet the appalling burden of taxes which has not been lightened in spite of the fall in rentals and real estate values, should now band together to place in office competent and honest persons, and turn out those who have been exploiting the taxpayers.

"Why should frugal and industrious citizens toil day by day that a handful of discredited politicians may enjoy every luxury and live at their ease? The decent people of this city outnumber the other type ten to one. United and organized in the support of good candidates they would sweep the city in the coming election. The present seems to me to be the opportunity of a lifetime."

Unsung New Yorkers

NEW YORK, July 8.

IN THE YORKVILLE section of our town lives a family I will refer to as the Schmidts. Their real family name is one of those long German affairs that few Americans can ever pronounce with any degree of satisfaction. So the Schmidts will be their name in this story.

I call it a story, although it isn't much of a yarn, at that. It's more the study of a type of man who has refused to move along with the times.

Let's go back three years and take a look at the Schmidt family. Mr. Schmidt, Mrs. Schmidt and two daughters. Sophie the eldest daughter was 13 at the time. Lena was 10.

As far back as she could remember Sophie had found it very difficult to get along with her father. And when I say difficult I'm putting it mildly. He was extremely suspicious of the child. No matter what she did, his mind was such that he immediately placed the wrong interpretation upon her reply.

Even at the age of 13 Sophie was given an occasional beating. She was completing her first year in high school, which proved that she was an intelligent child. She certainly had the thoughts and desires of any normal girl. Yet she was afraid to speak of them because of her father's inevitable reactions.

After the evening meal he would spread his paper before him and devour the scandal of the day with great gusto. But he would grunt disapprovingly as he read.

"Imagine such a thing as this," he would growl. "In a town in the Middle West a child of 16 has eloped with a married man. The papers says her parents are broken-hearted.

"Well they might be. If I had such a child I would kill her with my bare hands. When I was a boy I had respect for my people. I honored my father and my mother. But now, in this crazy country, the children have no respect for anything."

He would glare at Sophie and Lena. They would move closer to their mother. And Mr. Schmidt would turn his paper rapidly in order to find stories that were just a little juicier. . . .

Mr. Schmidt, of course, was the biggest kind of a fool. As I write this I try to make excuse for him. Perhaps he honestly thought he had the correct method of raising children. But, somehow or other, I doubt it. He was too narrow, too small and too much of a beast to be on the level with any one set of feelings. I'm afraid I don't think very much of my character.

The children grew, which is a bad habit children have. Their father failed to grow better. As a matter of fact, he grew worse. If Lena, now approaching 16, asked permission to go to the public library at night, her father would pound the table.

"You are not going out," he would rant. "I know what you have in mind. Standing on corners with some of those loafers. Don't you lie to me about libraries. It's boys you want. Well, you're not going out. You understand?"

What's that you say? You think I'm exaggerating? Well, you're wrong. If anything, I'm merely giving a few of the milder things that man said to his daughters. . .

We arrive at a day when Sophie was but a few months from high school graduation. There was to be a dance, and practically the entire graduating class was to attend. You can readily imagine how much that girl wanted to go. I think she would gladly have chopped five years from her life if her father had given his consent without any argument. And she unfolded the fact to her mother.

"Please, mamma," she begged, "please speak to father. Please make him see that I'm not a baby any longer. Please let me have a little fun.

"I've studied hard, mamma. I'm one of the youngest girls in my class and I've never done a wrong thing. Won't you please ask papa to get me my first evening dress and let me go to this dance? Please?"

Her mother understood. Maybe she had been understanding things for a long time without speaking about them. At any rate, on one of the very few occasions she had ever asked her husband for anything, Mrs. Schmidt told him he should let Sophie go to that dance.

"You must buy her an evening dress," she said, "and you must let her go out. She is a young woman now, and all your hollerings cannot change that fact. She must be permitted to go out. Otherwise you will some day be a sorry man."

No need to tell you that Mr. Schmidt raved and ranted. No use telling you that he cursed violently. No use telling you that his wife waited patiently and stuck to her ground.

In the end she won her point. Mr. Schmidt handed out enough money for a cheap evening gown. And Sophie was permitted to attend the party. . .

Ever get the feeling that you were absolutely free? Ever take a deep breath, throw your hands upward and cry, "Thank God for this?" Well, it's a great sensation—and sometimes a dangerous one. It was dangerous for the girl on that big night.

At the dance she had several drinks of gin from a flask that one of the boys was carrying. It was the first drink she had ever tasted in all her life. As she whirled around with boy after boy she felt herself growing dizzy and she knew she was doing wrong. But the picture of her father kept dancing before her. And she laughed at it.

"He can't catch me now," she cried to herself. "I can do as I wish. He can't accuse me of things now. He isn't here. I'm free!"

Soon they grew dizzier. She felt that the air would help her. She went downstairs alone and stood in front of the building. A large car passed with two men in it. They waved at her. She laughed happily. She was a woman now—and free. She waved back.

Five minutes later she had climbed into the car. She was going for a little ride with these nice men. They, too, had a big flask. Surely she was getting even with Mr. Schmidt now. Getting even with a father who had held her down all these years . . .

At 4 o'clock in the morning Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt returned from the hospital. Their daughter had been tossed from a speeding car a few blocks from the Queensboro Bridge. The doctors said there was a chance she might recover. She eventually did.

All the way home Mr. Schmidt cursed his wife. The girl was bad, he shouted, but she was worse. Hadn't she made him buy that evening gown? Hadn't she done this and that? Never once did he realize that the entire fault was his from top to bottom.

Inside the house, Mrs. Schmidt passed her younger daughter's room. She heard the child crying. She opened the door.

"What is it, Lena, child?" she cried anxiously. "Have you heard?"

The girl turned a tear-stained face.

"I haven't heard anything, mamma," she sobbed. "I'm crying because I, too, want to go out. When will papa get me an evening gown?"...

INDICT WIDOW AS SLAYER

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 8. —(AP.)—Mrs. Hadley Moseley was charged in an indictment with the slaying of Richard Acklen, who turned from newspaper reporting to bootlegging and killed her husband in a dispute over liquor territory.

The principal witness before the grand jury was Hadley Moseley, Jr., 8-year-old son of the accused woman.

The grand jury also indicted Mrs. Wes Ingram, wife of a convicted liquor hi-jacker and bank robber, as an accessory before the fact. Acklen's body, a bullet wound through the head, was found in a bedroom of the Moseley home May 9, a few days before he was to go on trial for slaying Moseley, for whom he said he sold liquor. Investigators said Mrs. Moseley's jealousy of the youth's attention to another woman motivated his death.

BOYS AND GIRLS EAGER TO BE ARCHERS

Response Is Immediate to Sun-Telegraph's Plan For Bow and Arrow Teams

Pittsburgh's boys and girls are already clamoring to get into the Sun-Telegraph Tom Thumb Junior Archery Club, details of which were announced yesterday.

There's lots of fun in a bow and arrow and an opportunity to display skill in marksmanship. It requires a little practice and it isn't long before it becomes a fascinating recreation.

TEAMS PLANNED

It is the Sun-Telegraph's plan to organize archery teams of five members throughout Pittsburgh. Boys' teams will adopt the names of birds and girls' teams names of flowers. With the boys there will be the Eagles, the "Crows," the "Robins," the "Redbirds," "Bluebirds," "Hawks" and other bird names. The girls will be known as the "Tulips," the "Roses," the "Hyacinths," the "Lilies," the "Snowballs" and the like.

These teams will have local contests preliminary to the "finals." It is hoped to organize several hundred five-member teams and from the interest the idea has already aroused it looks as though this would be an easy thing to do.

ARROWS HARMLESS

In the meantime the Sun-Telegraph has obtained the exclusive distribution rights for the Tom Thumb archery outfit, including arrows and colored targets. The arrows are safe because they have suction rubber tips that stick to the target when shot from the steel wired bow.

Boys and girls throughout Pittsburgh and vicinity interested in joining the Sun-Telegraph Tom Thumb Junior Archery Club can get complete information by filling in and mailing the official blank printed on page nine.

BURNING OF MAN INVESTIGATED

MONONGAHELA, Pa., July 8.—Police today were investigating the manner in which Vincent Iadirosi, 31, of Axelton, near here, suffered burns which may cause his death. He walked into Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon and said he had been caught in the explosion of a still in his home. Investigation at the home showed no evidence of an explosion, police said.

Whether he might have been burned in an explosion and fire which yesterday morning wrecked the poolroom of Louis Innocenti, at New Eagle, was being investigated by police. Everybody is going some place, and that some place is always an alluring resort suggesting long, cool days and hours of swimming and sunning and yachting. And nights of dining and dancing on terraces of clubs or summer homes. The children are going, too, for blissful days on sandy seashores.

Mrs. G. Faber Downey and her two little daughters left yesterday for Southampton where they always spend the season. Mrs. James Stuart Brown, Jr., and her little daughter, Betty, left yesterday for Bay Head.

In mid-July Mrs. Thomas J. Blair, of Fifth avenue, and her daughter, Nolene, will motor to Packard Manor, Chautauqua. Nolene will stay there at the Children's Country Club and Mrs. Blair will go to her country estate near Franklin, Pa. Packard Manor, the former estate of the late W. D. Packard, is the only country club for children in the United States; in the winter it is a children's school.

The W. Eugene Garys and John Van K. Douglass have arrived at Saranac Inn in the heart of the Adirondack Mountains on Upper Saranac Lake and are occupying a bungalow for the season.

New Clip Brooches Bear Replica of Owner's Home

LONDON—The latest idea in clip-brooches is to wear a replica of one's home or favorite building on one's hat, belt or bag. At the famous Embassy Club a well-known society woman was rently seen wearing a miniature replica of a Tyrolean pagoda carved in jade. A famous woman owner of race horses had a "clip" that represented a classic winner modeled from life. This latter was worked out entirely in diamonds.

Club Co-Operation Urged At Convention of B. P. W.

RICHMOND, Va., July 8.—(AP.)—Closer co-operation between Business and Professional Women's clubs and men's service organizations was urged today in the biennial report of Emily R. Neubuhl, executive secretary of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, at the federation's first biennial convention here. Co-operation with men's service organizations is a new club activity, she pointed out.

The report emphasized a need for clear-cut programs, and urged an "age factor survey" to determine in what degree age is a deterrent to the business woman's success.

The first general session of the convention was opened last night with the biennial address of the president, Miss Marion McClench, of Ann Arbor, in which she outlined a 10-year program for the federation.

The states should adopt a uniform marriage law requiring a specific period between the time of application for a license and its issuance and thus prevent so-called "gin" and hasty marriages, Judge Camilla Kelley, of the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court, Memphis, told the convention yesterday.

She also said many laws should be repealed and many should be amended, and urged the women to take more interest in politics.

Martha Connole, East St. Louis, Ill., chairman of national legislation, said the unemployment crisis has furnished "an excuse for greater discrimination than ever before." She urged the women to make a thorough study of the existing discrimination against their sex by employes with a view to taking some decisive action to correct the practice.

This evening a message to the convention from Lady Astor, a member of the British Parliament and a native of Virginia, and girlhood friend of the convention chairman, Seline Bowman, will be read.

The bride, given in marriage by S. M. Reich, wore a gown of white lace and carried a sheaf of calla lilies. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Short left for an Eastern trip and will be at home in Boston later.

Winners of Girl Scout Contest Stress Health

A girl is good looking to other girls only wher her beauty is more than skin deep, according to the winners of the "When Is a Girl Good Looking" contest, announced in the July issue of the American Girl, official Girl Scout magazine.

Frances Reynolds, of Venice, Cal., and Laura Taylor, of Plattsburgh, N. Y., winners of the first and second prizes, both stressed the importance of good health and happy dispositions in their definitions of a good-looking girl.

Miss Reynolds says:

"A girl is good looking when she is healthy and fairly tingling with pep and vivacity. Health affects a girl's state of mind, which in turn affects her looks, and a pleasant expression enhances any face, whether plain or beautiful. To have a pleasant expression, one must have a sweet disposition. With these virtues generally come good manners, cheerfulness and thoughtfulness, which are attractive to every one. Individuality and naturalness are charming, particularly in young girls.

"Clothes, colors and styles should be chosen which set off a girl's beauty to its best possible advantage. Every tiny detail counts in the impression one makes upon others, so that clothes and accessories should be kept meticulously clean. Poise and carriage have a great deal to do with appearance, and correct posture is important at all times."

Miss Taylor emphasizes the "beauty is as beauty does" theme. She submitted the "When Is a Girl Good Looking" question to her own particular group of friends, and it was their unanimous suggestion that one should spend a great deal of time with the candidate for the coveted title, observing her at work and at play. If she came up to their ideal and was as pleasing in manner and appearance, at work as well as at play, then she was good looking. This group listed the main physical requisites as clear, healthy skin, bright eyes, clean, well-cared-for hair, hands and nails, and general good health and happy facial expression.

French Woman Becomes Famous as Lamp Maker

PARIS.—Further proof of the great progress French women are making in the business world comes by way of Mme. Marguerite Etlin, art decorator and maker of probably the most beautiful crystal chandeliers, lamps, etc., in Paris today.

It is the little glass tube which has brought her fame. Six years ago Mme. Etlin, then merely one of many chic Parisiennes not in the public eye, discovered that electric light, multiplied by many of these little round tubes, produces nothing short of a fairy spectacle in any room.

Her life is a perpetual creation. Every day she finds a new motif for an exceptional lampshade composed of thousands of these fine tubes, or perhaps a unique shade of cellophane resting in a glass vase or bowl.

Then she makes fascinating little crystal animals, fish of all varieties, statuettes in caricature, more lifelike than nature itself; crystal flowers in most delicate form, buttonhole nosegays or large decorative themes.

After-dinner liqueur sets, with barrel-bottles and glasses of finest crystal, prismatic goblets and the like are all specimens of exquisite French taste which reveal many hours of research and study for this brilliant young French woman.

Mme. Etlin received high honors for her work exhibited at the Exposition des Arts Decoratifs two years ago and was given a big order for the Colonial Exposition. The lighting of the Casino at Monaco is one of her most recent and important pieces of work.

DRASTIC CHANGES MADE IN THIS SEASON'S BEACH MODE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, July 8. — See that you are sartorially sure of yourself at the seashore. Last year's beach clothes, no matter how little used or carefully preserved, will avail you naught this season. For this year's crop of beach things is entirely new and different.

* * *

FREAK PAJAMAS are not for this year. The natty nautical note is emphasized and no one is required to look like a musical comedy version of the seaside girl. And for those who are weary of pajamas, and for those who never really liked 'em, there is something much newer. And that is the linen wrap-over tunic worn over the bathing suit. But more of this new mode anon. Just a glance at this year's models will show that the practical note has been combined with the decorative to make beach ensembles that are the apex of good taste and art.

* * *

CHANEL HAS GONE in strongly for beach pajamas this season and has several amusing and good-looking models in her new collection. Many of these suits have little belted jackets of matching material. Shown is such an ensemble in pale blue shantung. The jacket has four pockets and is trimmed with stitching bordering all the edges. The flaring pajamas are very wide and quite short. How different this suit is from those of last year.

* * *

AND NOW FOR the very new beach tunics which have been introduced by Worth. These tunics of printed linen are suggested for wear over one-piece bathing suits of wool jersey. The tunic sketched is in gaily printed linen resembling cretonne in effect. The yoke is of plain white linen and the four buttons are linen covered.

Tasteless Dextrin Sought for Use On Stamps

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP.)—The fact that people insist on licking stamps and envelopes has started Agriculture Department chemists on a search for a native starch which will produce a tasteless dextrin.

At present it is necessary to import annually several million dollars worth of dextrin made from the starch of the cassava plant of the tropics to satisfy the taste of discriminating stamp lickers.

The sweet potato may hold the secret. Chemists are making experiments.

OLD CAR STARTS ACROSS U. S.

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP.)—Dwight Huss, retired Detroit automobile engineer, started from City Hall today for Portland, Ore., in the same vehicle in which in 1905 he won the first trans-continental automobile race—a one-cylinder, seven-horsepower open runabout.

Accompanied by Howard F. Davis, his mechanic, Huss started out in the open car, which is steered by a tiller, at 9:30 a. m., with a convoy of three 1931 automobiles. Huss carried letters from Gov. Roosevelt and Mayor Walker for the governor of Oregon and the mayor of Portland.

The car, named Old Scout, will follow the same route to Portland that it did in 1905, when it crossed the continent in 44 days.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Penn audiences will have no sooner gotten over straining their tonsils in appreciation of Teddy the Joyce than they will be called upon to fracture their larynxes in behalf of Wesley the Eddy, the one other ex-master of Penn ceremonials whom the customers gratefully remember. Wes. will be along Friday to inquire why and where we are depressed, and to prescribe for our hypochondria, which is Dr. Vizetelly's term for that low feeling.

* * *

Small Timer, clad in knickers, says they do away with pressing expenses and were adopted because the crease in trousers seemed to decrease so rapidly.

* * *

Warner Brothers advise us—hold on to your seats now—that Cab Calloway, "direct from the famous Cotton Club of New York," will come to the Stanley Friday, July 17. With Calloway, of course, will be his orchestra. Calloway sometimes is called "the black Rudy Vallee."

* * *

Small Timer, thinking to get a laugh out of the current trend in city affairs, says that though public servants may have their price they eventually give themselves away.

* * *

Fay Templeton, who recently appeared as "Little Buttercup" in a revival of "H. M. S. Pinafore" in New York, then announced her permanent retirement from the stage, had her fingers crossed. It is stated now that she will again be seen in the same role when the opera is presented for another two weeks on Broadway, beginning Monday, July 27.

* * *

Small Timer says he is not annoyed by an occasional sour note in the orchestra, but doesn't like it if the player goes on to the bitter end.

* * *

Katharine Cornell, whose "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," is one of the hits of New York, is now on a summer schedule of five days a week, omitting Saturday. Matinees are Wednesday and Thursday. She spends week-ends in her country home.

Resemblance to Barrymore Lands Mr. William In Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.

HOLLYWOOD, July 8.

When Warners-First National resumes production in September, Warren William is scheduled to play the criminal attorney hero of "Mouth-Piece," a story of Frank Collins. Some months back the ex-Broadway actor was hailed out here for the likeness of his profile to that of John Barrymore. In the light of his performances, this seems unfair to an excellent actor. At present, William is appearing opposite Billie Burke in a cast production of "The Vinegar Tree." The first option on his contract with Warners will be due about time he is supposed to start work on the new film.

John Barrymore

HUMOROUS MISHAPS

They were talking about the humorous mishaps of their stock company apprenticeship. Pat (Front Page) O'Brien recalled the time he was supposed to hide in a trunk, eavesdrop on a conversation between the leading lady and another character and to emerge upon a line cue from her. One night, however, the trunk lock snapped shut on him. In due time, the leading lady gave the cue, but although the trunk was visibly agitated, no actor appeared. After ad-libbing for several minutes, the leading lady asked in desperation:

"Are you a ghost?"

In reply came a muffled voice:

"Not yet, but it's only a question of time."

LATEST GOSSIP

Doug Fairbanks looks very swank walking around the lot in one of those gift costumes from a maharajah — a tailored coat and pants bobbed just above the knee. . . . James Cagney, hero of gangster pictures, doesn't smoke . . . Producer Louis B. Mayer will use the yacht Invader during Joseph Schenck's absence in Europe. . . Originally called "A Little Flat in a Temple," Ann Harding's new film was renamed "Devotion," and now, at the star's suggestion, will be titled "Alias Mrs. Halifax." . . Readers wishing to write me may address letters care of the Los Angeles Evening Herald. This will save the postoffice trouble, and will avoid the delayed deliveries of the past. . . . Because Sylvia Sidney still limps from her recent automobile accident, her work in "Street Scene" has been limited to closeups. . . David Rollins, once of Fox, is working in Hal Roach Comedies now. . . Lucien Hubbard broke his foot playing polo. If this keeps up, the studios will be putting anti-polo clauses in contracts. . . Gary Cooper set out for Europe with only two suitcases.

Ann Harding

HIS RULING PASSION

Showmanship crops out in odd places. Recently a Los Angeles theater official had occasion to appear in the court as a witness. Asked his business, he replied:

"I'm the manager of the —— Theater, where Robert Woolsey is now playing in 'Everything's Rosie,' in conjunction with four acts of vaudeville."

He wasn't cross-examined.

Hearst News Has Hoover, Fliers

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The climax of the honors bestowed upon Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, the round-the-world fliers, is reached with their reception by President Hoover at the White House, shown in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News.

From Paris comes thrilling pictures of the running of the Grand Prix which marks the close of the racing season in France. The race, in which there were 13 starters, was won by No. 13, Barneveldt. Among those who saw the race were President Doumer, of France, and Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the United States Treasury.

Thrilling aviation stunts are performed by the British Royal Air Forces at Hendon as part of an aerial pageant in which 200 planes took part.

Billy Burke of Connecticut, is shown winning the National Open Golf Championship at Toledo from George Von Elm by one stroke in the second play-off.

Old Ironsides, as the frigate Constitution was popularly known, is shown leaving the Charleston Navy Yard after having been restored to all the glory of her former days. Under her own power, the Constitution will make a tour of the principal ports of the United States.

Former President Calvin Coolidge is seen and heard as he celebrates his fifty-ninth birthday at Red Gable, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns, of Scampscott, Mass. The former President cuts his birthday cake as Mrs. Coolidge and friends look on.

France honors the memory of Britian's famous war chief, Marshal Haig, by unveiling a statue to him in the square at Montreuil-sur-Mer.

Lou Moore, of Los Angeles, captures the 100-mile race at the Altoona track making a speed of 108 miles an hour. He has many narrow escapes on the rough turns as the other drivers crowd him.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

New York Night

Far beneath me lies the purple park
Like a great velvet jeweler's pad
On which a million diamonds
Have just been tossed:
Far above me the moon is a golden balloon
Held high by a searchlight's beam.
Underneath the Japanese lanterns
On the roof-garden to my right
A millionaire is kissing a blonde chorus girl;
In a rowboat on the lake below
A sailor is kissing a blonde shop girl;
I'm sitting here alone
Feeling like the devil
Because all the blondes I know
Prefer Gentlemen. —W.

Word Juggling

Take it from L. Meltzer—there are a lot of femme crooners who try to imitate her like Etting thing!

Heheheh

Deems Taylor relates the one about the two matinee-goers who met in the lobby of a theater where a notorious flop was giving its final performances.

"How jeedoo!" ejaculated the first, "did you get in on a pass?"

"My dear," screeched the other, "you can't get in without one!"

In Other Hollywords

They tell you that The Brown Derby restaurant in Hollywood prefers catering to the chin-ema stars and others who like to swank. A fast rule is that no one may enter who sheds his coat, no matter how torrid the weather.

The tourists, however, give the management the headache, but times are hard and the place cannot afford to turn away customers.

So they solved the problem in this manner. Whenever coatless men come in, they are taken to a rear room where all sizes and shades of coats are available and guaranteed to fit!

New York is louder but not funnier.

As If You Didn't Know

Take it from I. R., the depression has reached the stage where there aren't enough actors working to steal each other's gags.

Harry Reichenbach

They buried another favorite son of Broadway yesterday—Harry Reichenbach—dean of the exploiters—good fellow—with—the ace of the "roastmasters"—and pal to the columnists. Harry never took his own profession to heart. He would say that a press agent was nothing but a bill-poster with a full dress suit. But that a movie press-agent was only an accent-remover.

His exploitation stunts never failed to pack a theater. Whenever anything of a startling nature happened in the theater world—you could easily trace it to Reichenbach. He made people talk about his play, movie or circus.

His pet stunt, he once said, was the one he pulled in the subways during the rush hour. He engaged a "rube" character and his wife, whose attire alone, attracted attention. They stood in the packed trains, riding back and forth, and the rube—making people think his wife was deaf—would yell at the top of his voice:

"But I don't want to go to Coney Island, maw! Take me to see Carl Laemmle's new movie at the Central Theater!!!"

Addendum

Another of his tricks was to mail 50,000 letters to himself. Then Harry would send agents all over the five boroughs "losing" the "opened-and-read" missives.

They had been folded and wrinkled, of course, and lost in doorways or on the streets. Harry's argument was that all the world loved to learn how the other half lived, and he knew that the average person would pick up the letters and read them.

In other words, 50,000 people read the following letters:

"Dear Harry, I am so blue. My wife ran off with another man. I wanted to kill myself at first, but I happened to see the movie at the Strand and it was so like my own life, anybody's life, I guess. The wife in the movies also ran off with another man, but—well, see it for yourself, and you'll agree it is the greatest heart-throb seen in New York in years."

He aided the florists with the slogan:

"A daisy may tell her you love her—but an orchid is more convincing!"

Fair Trade

Not all the night club owners have refrigerated hearts. Some of them have hit on an idea to relieve the hunger of chorus girls.

The jobless lassies, who are really hungry and have a yen for a juicy steak, etc., may go to the night clubs, where they are fed—with no strings attached.

The managements know that when the girls get "a break" and encounter a John who spends, the gals will bring the lads to their rendezvous. It is a fair enough bargain all around, and this corner applauds It All.

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for the dictionary of best similes: Allen Prescott: Silent and sure as the growing of your beard . . . Norman Sullivan's: Expanded like a garage mechanics's estimate . . . Howard Wolf's: Getting Britain and Holland together is like attempting to induce Coolidge and Peggy Joyce to pair off at a party . . . Helen Rowland's: The average man's habits are like potato bugs; you can't eradicate or ignore 'em, you simply have to love 'em . . . and, Bugs Baer's: Guilty as a bottle under a table.

The Schmeling-Stribling encounter as reported in part by Paul Gallico:

"Round 9—Schmeling blocked a left to body. Schmeling landed left hook to chin. Schmeling punched the body. Schmeling landed three lefts and rights to body. Stribling got in a right to shoulder. Schmeling drove a right to chin. Schmeling landed a right and left to face. STRIBLING'S ROUND."

3 STREET CARS INJURE 60

NEW YORK, July 8.—(INS.)—More than 60 persons were suffering from shock and slight bruises today and five persons were seriously injured as a result of two street car accidents in Brooklyn.

Three persons were seriously injured and 10 others slightly hurt last night when two street cars crashed head-on. A split switch caused the accident.

Brakes that would not hold on slippery tracks were blamed for an accident Tuesday afternoon, when a street car jumped the rails and crashed into a drug store in a three-story building. Two persons were seriously injured and more than 50 suffered shock and minor bruises. The forward part of the car penetrated the drug store, wrecking two counters and three telephone booths.

Modjeski, who is a son of the late Polish tragedienne, Mme. Helen Modjeski, obtained a divorce here Monday from Cecille Modjeski, whom he married in New York 46 years ago. Mrs. Giblyn likewise obtained a divorce Monday.

COME TO THIS HAPPY LAND

Sail the Highways and Byways... OF Inland Waters

AS YOU follow the broad flood of the St. Lawrence, putting in at quaint settlements, there is a sense of being within the fringe of mighty forests. When, at last, your steamer heads up the canyon of the Saguenay, then you realize that you are at the edge of a boundless wilderness.

En route you will visit great cities. Toronto, the Queen City of Canada. Montreal, third largest French-speaking city in the world, filled with historic interest. Quebec, ah, Quebec! with its cobbled, hilly streets, its grim, grey Citadel and ancient guns—there is a bit of old France for you.

Variety is the keynote of this marvellous cruise. From the Thousand Islands, the exciting St. Lawrence Rapids, the smooth, wide reaches of the great river where it washes the Laurentian Capes, to the unfathomed waters of Saguenay's famous canyon—every passing mile is filled with new interest, added charm.

Write for illustrated folder, Niagara to the Sea, which describes in detail the pleasures of this wonderful vacation cruise.

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

Is It Worth While to Wait For Vagabond Lover?

He wants her to "wait till he's finished sowing his wild oats!"

Oh, yes—he loves her. And maybe some day, when he gets around to it, he'll marry her.

But, in the meantime . . . well, in the meantime there's Rosey and Sadie and Clara and Belle, and Rita and Peggy and Susy and Stell . . . and you can't expect a lively young fellow to pass up all those opportunities and settle down with just one gal.

And while he's playing the field what's Louise to do? Oh, he has all that planned, too. She's to be a Good Girl, and wait till he's through. For he'll need her then to make a nice, quiet home for him.

'N' Louise is wondering if she should.

Yet they give women rights!

"Dear Sally:

"I need your help. Yes, you might know . . . It's a man. We have known each other ever since we were kids, having been neighbors and gone to the same schools, clear through Hi. We've always gone around together. He always carried my books and I was his girl. After I finished Hi I went away to New York. While I was gone he wrote me faithfully.

A few months ago I had a chance to get a good job in my home town, so I came home. We began going together seriously. And I realized that I did love him, deeply and truly. He seemed to feel the same about me, too, for he asked me to marry him. I accepted.

ASKED TO WAIT

Then after we'd even planned our home, a new girl came to our neighborhood. A case of 'new face, new fancy,' I guess. And he just simply stopped coming over. He told me, after they'd gone together several months, that he loved her, and that we 'probably never would have made a go of married life.' Well, being crazy about him, and wanting him to be happy, I told him to go with whoever he liked.

"Then, suddenly, he and she broke up. He said he'd 'found she wasn't his type.' And he came back to me . . . for a few months. But now he has found another 'new' girl. And just the other day he asked me if I wouldn't wait till he had finished sowing his wild oats . . . because he wanted to marry me, as he knew I was the only girl for him—one who would make and keep a home.

HE LACKS LOYALTY

"Now he knows I am crazy about him. I won't go out with anyone else. I didn't, even while I was in New York. My heart is breaking. Shall I just drop him, go away and try to forget him? I'm only 20 (he's 25), but I've been around enough to know what real love is, and I know I will always love him. Please help he. Shall I wait for him? LOUISE."

Shall you wait, sitting lonely and unhappy while he "sows his wild oats"? What for? Why should you waste your time on a loafer who is so entirely lacking in decency and loyalty and consideration for you?

Yes, I know you think now that you love him. But I am telling you, little girl, that if you do wait and pick up his damaged remnants, you'll be grabbing yourself a bunch of grief that'll make your present "broken heart" look like a fiesta.

It is perfectly plain that he doesn't love you. As a matter of fact, even though he does look like The Answer to a Maiden's Prayer to you, he isn't worth the powder to blow him up—and the only reason he wants you to wait for him is that he thinks you're nice and safe, and he can trust you not to do as he is doing.

You're a sort of Old Age Insurance girlie. Useful when the rest have passed him up.

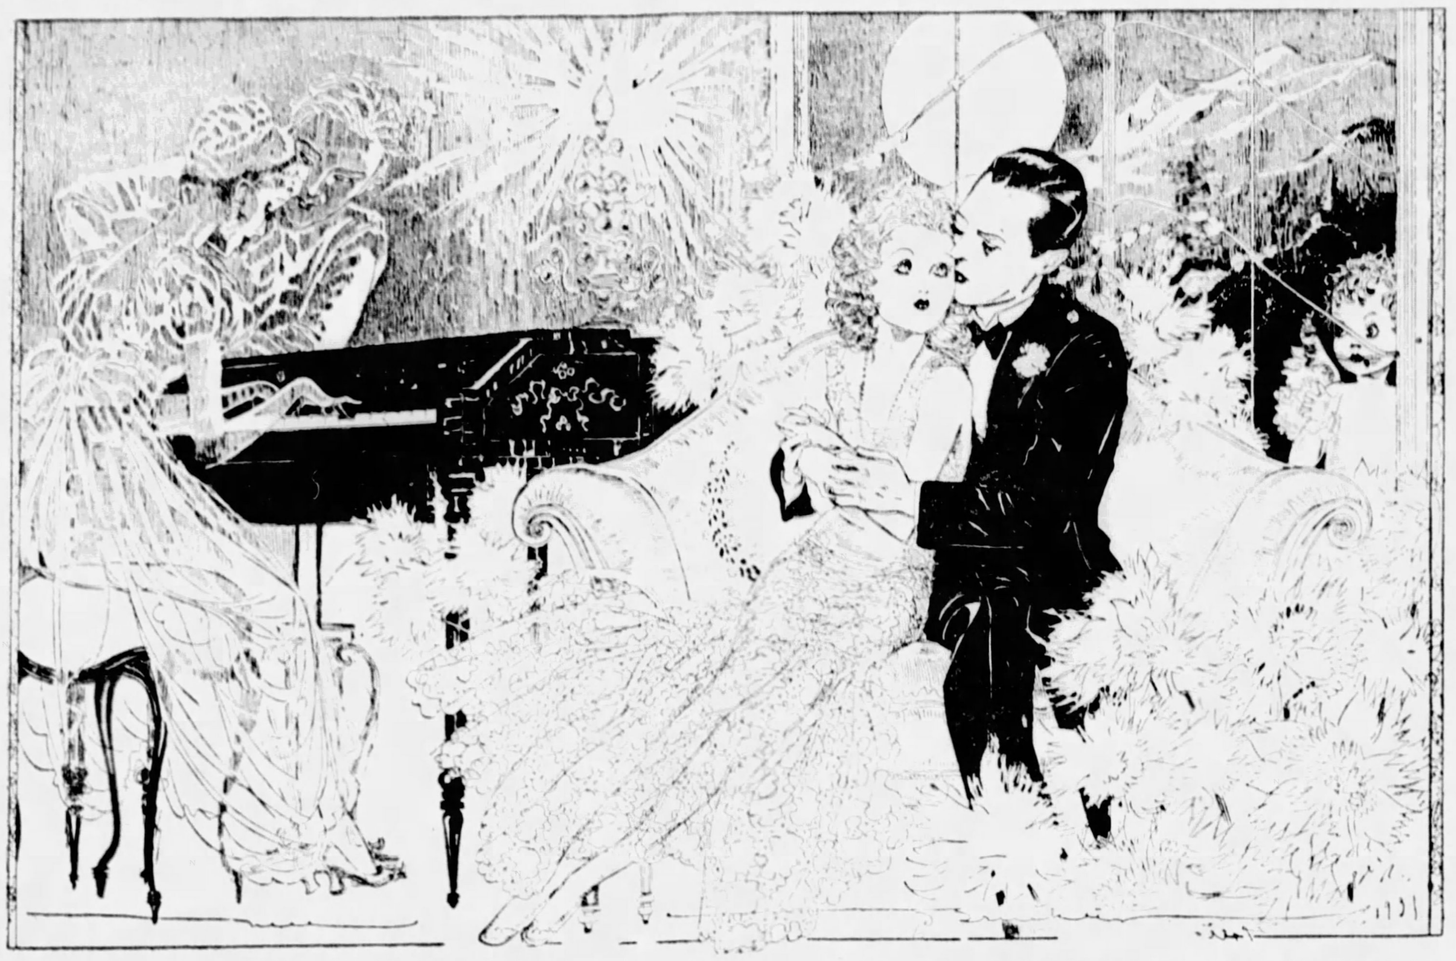
LOVE SEES GHOSTS

Drawn by Nell Brinkley



Gloating upon the few pieces of REALLY old furniture that my purse had said, "Well, if you MUST" to, I wondered one day that if I had the seeing eye might I get glimpse of a ghost or two getting a cup out of my corner cupboard, or playing Colonial solitaire at my table. If I but could! I might see a pair of lovers, a girl in cherry slippers and a young man in a violet coat, clasped silently on a love-seat in the twilight.

All these personages (for old furniture seems groups of persons), in furniture, standing, thinking in countless shop windows, brought from England, France, Italy, Revolutionary America, gathered out of their homes where they stood and took part in the life that went on variously around them must be beautifully haunted to LOVE. Love, and the loving eye, feel a movement of hands and figures they must have known, about them.

Looking greedily upon an ancient spinnet in a Madison avenue window, I thought, to myself, "When you go, moved again, poor beautiful orphan, into a home, some night looking through a twilight window at a modern young pair on a couch beside you in lace gown and black-bird evening clothes, Eros will see another man and girl, differently garbed, hovering over you, and hear a faint funny old tune about, 'Ah, why must thou with WOUNDING eyes—'" upon the air!

You are worth the money, to that person who has it, for the perfumed picture you'll bring with you!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Arthritis Is Usually Result Of Infections

Many persons confuse rheumatic pains with pain caused by arthritis. Arthritis is an inflammation of a joint. It is accompanied by severe pain, which is aggravated by walking. Rheumatic pain may involve the joint, but it is more likely to strike the muscles of the body.

Dr. Copeland

Arthritis is usually seen in people of advanced years. It rarely attacks the young. It is one of the usual ailments of neglected age. Its prevention should be of interest to all who are anxious to do away with physical pain and deformity.

All cases of arthritis must be considered as infectious, or the effects of infections. By this is meant that the inflammation of the joint is caused by the action of bacteria. Where do these bacteria come from?

Hygiene of the mouth, particularly the care of the teeth and gums, is still greatly neglected by the vast majority of people. Most cases of arthritis indicate poor hygiene of the mouth and grossly neglected teeth.

Periodic examination of the teeth, with regular X-ray examination of all dead teeth and others suspected of being decayed, is most important. There is no doubt that neglected teeth and disorders of the gums left untreated, lead to serious disease in other parts of the body. A bad mouth is a common cause of arthritis.

Infected teeth and tonsils should be removed. Age is no factor and it is just as important for an elderly individual to have infected tonsils removed as it is for a child. As I have repeatedly stated, I do not advocate the ruthless removal of teeth or tonsils, but if they are diseased, there should be no hesitation about their removal.

In addition to the removal of all possible centers of infection, it is important to correct faulty habits in personal hygiene. Improper food, constipation, lack of exercise, of sunshine and fresh air are to be considered among the causes of chronic arthritis.

Please remember that arthritis cannot be cured by salves or ointments. A general survey of the entire body is necessary to discover the cause. When that is removed you may hope for the elimination and prevention of this irritating and undesirable disease. Treatment directed toward the general health of the body, particularly the teeth, tonsils, diet and mode of living, will insure relief.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

I felt a weight lifted from my shoulders at Harry Underwood's advice to tell my father of my anxiety.

"I'll be so glad to take your advice," I said, "and now I must run. Bring the boys up for some of that fruit punch in a few minutes. They love it."

"They'll be there with bells attached and ears all nicely pinned back to their little scalps," he replied, and then I hurried up the stairs again to the first floor, and not stopping to go out to the veranda, I went on up to Mary's room, where I found both her and Marion in sketchy beach robes.

"It's so hot, Auntie Madge," Marion said, "that I just had to shed some clothes, and Mary joined me. You don't want us for anything, do you? But isn't the baby simply adorable? I shall be so thrilled when she wakes up. I shan't know what to do. Have you named her yet? The last letter Mother had, said that you hadn't decided what to call her. I think that's awful. Oh! I beg your pardon. I oughtn't to have said that, but she's too sweet and wonderful not to have any name of her own. Won't you be naming her soon?"

"One question at a time, dearest," I said, laughing. "As it would take all the afternoon to tell you why we haven't named the baby, I shan't begin now. And I distinctly don't need either of you for anything. You were very wise to 'shed your clothes. We're having some fruit punch and little cakes on the veranda in a few minutes, but I'll send Katy up here with a tray for you two. You can have it on that little balcony outside Mrs. Bickett's room, if you wish. You'll just have time for a shower before she comes up."

Both girls giggled.

"We've just had 'em," Mary said.

"And fruit punch up here will be simply heavenly! What makes it all the nicer is the fact that I know you really don't need us. You and Aunt Lillian and Aunt Katherine will have to go over the whole saga of the young daughter's first month in this vale of tears, and Marion and I would be distinctly in the way, don't you think so, Pats?"

She flashed a gamin grin at me as she put the question to Marion, and "Pats"—the family, to its own astounded amusement, is learning to call Marion by the ridiculous nickname given her at Whitney Hall—gave an answering chuckle.

"I'll broadcast Alaska we'd be out of the picture," she said, mischievously, "and, besides, I've got four million, five hundred seventy-six, nine hundred eighty-four and one-third distinct and separate things to tell Mary before dinner."

"I have a few thousand items to relate to Marion, too," Mary said, and I raised my eyebrows quizzically at them.

"I don't need three guesses as to the subjects of the millions and thousands of 'items,'" I said, and they giggled, but without a trace of the flushed self-consciousness with which girls of a former generation listened to teasing about their "beaux."

"It's time to blush, Marion," Mary said. "Don't they teach you how at Whitney Hall?"

"I flunked that, so I'm taking a P. G. to get it," Marion explained, with a wry grimace, which I ignored, as that post graduate course at Whitney Hall was a subject to be skirted delicately. Marion, who had graduated in June, with honors, at Whitney Hall, was the youngest member of her class, but, of course, was wild to go on to college with her classmates. She could have qualified for the age limit, though only by a few days, but Lillian and Harry had decided upon the advice of college authorities to postpone her college entrance for a year, and have her go back to Whitney for a year of work in domestic science, a subject which her full college schedule would not permit.

"I don't want her as helpless as her mother," Lillian had said, with a grimace at her lack of domestic qualities, and Marion, dutifully but reluctantly, had agreed to the plan.

"Oh, Mary!" I said, "will you show me where you put away those table runners I gave you before I went to the hospital?"

"Surely," she said, jumping up and pulling her kimona closer around her, and as we went out of the door I was sure that Marion had guessed nothing of my subterfuge.

MRS. PATTERSON, EDITOR, SEES FIELD FOR WOMEN IN NEWS WORK

WASHINGTON, July 8. Following is the talk made by Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, editor of the Washington Herald, in the radio homemakers' hour, on WABC and the Columbia Broadcasting System this morning:

A woman editing a newspaper is a novelty, as a woman in Congress once was, or a woman smoking a cigaret, or especially, a woman voting.

But we get used to everything. Dr. Mary Walker was sent to jail for wearing ugly and respectable men's clothing, with a stove pipe hat on her head. Now 3,000,000 young women wear men's clothes, almost no clothes, and nobody puts them in jail.

The world becomes accustomed to whatever happens.

Perhaps a woman editor is resented because an editor is supposed to possess wisdom, and something in the masculine mind objects to the suggestion that a woman can know anything, except what she has recently been told by some man.

You remember what Samuel Johnson said about women preaching? He said:

"Sir, a woman preaching is like a dog's walking on his hind legs. It is not done well; but you are surprised to find it done at all."

Samuel Johnson would probably have said something even more pungent about a woman editor.

Describes Work

But if he could come back to life in Los Angeles, Aimee Semple McPherson probably would convince him that a woman can preach. Before long, there will be enough female editors, but real editors (You know I am only a kind of fake editor), preaching through the editorial pages of the United States to convince the ghost of Samuel Johnson that a woman trying to use her mind is not necessarily "like a dog's walking on his hind legs."

What is newspaper work? What is the task of a newspaper editor? What is there about it that a man can necessarily do better than a woman? What prevents a woman being useful and successful as an editor?

A newspaper is an institution established, first of all, TO GIVE INFORMATION. The NEWS comes first. That word, appropriately constructed, represents the four points of the compass whence the news comes.

First comes the news because public thinking and public opinion are based on news events, and what the public THINKS is the thing most important.

Influence on Public

Real editors, preachers, judges, legislators, presidents may suggest or influence public thinking. As an example: Mr. Hearst is one of the most powerful formulators of public opinion in the world today. His recent plan for the alleviation of depression through the expenditure of $5,000,000,000 in public works will bear fruit, you will see, in the near future.

But it is the thought of the public itself that counts. What goes on now, in 120,000,000 brains in the United States, represents what will HAPPEN in the United States, as time goes by. The future of the country is born in the minds of today.

Next in importance to news, perhaps, comes OPINION, which means the editorial page. That page depends on the REAL editors; in our organization, Mr. Hearst and Mr. Brisbane at the top and so on down the line. The editorial page depends on the ability of the editor to interpret the public thought. If an editor receives from a man or a woman a letter saying: "I read your article, and what you say I have said a dozen times," he may be sure that he has written an article useful to his paper.

Of course, super-genius may guide and direct public thought, as in the case of a Lincoln, and of two or three truly great editors I won't name now. But the AVERAGE humble editor, male or female, may be well content to INTERPRET and EXPRESS that thought.

Mental Bill of Fare

After the news and editorial opinion, comes what is included under "entertainment." The wise editor prepares his mental bill of fare, based on understanding of his readers, as a wise cook prepares his menu, based on understanding of the public appetite.

In order of their importance, in the line of entertainment and popularity, I should put first, sports, that interest all men, and consequently all women, interested always in things that men discuss.

Second, HUMOR, the so-called "comics" that delight children, and are read by their elders for mental relaxation. Henry Watterson was a great editor, but in a modern newspaper, his solemn editorial could not compete with "Bringing Up Father," "Skippy," "Tillie the Toiler," "Popeye, the Sailorman," or any one of a half dozen comics.

Third, comes FICTION. I put it third, although properly written and chosen, it may do more for a newspaper's circulation than any other feature. I have been told, upon good authority, that when Horace Greeley was running Eugene Sue's "Mysteries of Paris" in the New York Tribune, nearly 100 years ago, the upstate farmers stood in line at the postoffice, waiting for the next Tribune to be distributed.

David Graham Phillips' "Fall and Rise of Susan Lennox" caused the Cosmopolitan Magazine to sell readily for $1 a copy, although the regular price at that time was 15 cents.

News for Women

Fourth, information specially FOR WOMEN, fashions, so-called "beauty secrets," household information and advice, care of children, and so forth.

I have reviewed briefly, and with willingness to be corrected by any superior masculine editor, what I think the most important components of a newspaper. And I affirm that there is nothing in the contents of a newspaper that a woman cannot understand, no part of the paper to which she cannot contribute, no part of newspaper management that need, necessarily, be beyond her power to control.

Ask any woman, "What is the news today?" and she will give you an answer at least as accurate and intelligent as you can get from any man.

Every woman in the United States knows that the most important news in the United States today comes from Paris, concerning the effort of President Hoover to dispel the world's depression by temporarily suspending the impossible and cruel payments entailed by the war.

I should have gone to work in the newspaper business 25 years ago. Well, that can't be helped now.

In any case, I like newspaper work. I like the opportunity to deal with affairs that interest everybody. I adore the tricky problems of the advertising department and I am crazy of love for circulation. I hope that liking your work helps to build the foundation of success.

A newspaper is a public servant, possessing public influence. It should use that influence with sincerity, caution, justice and respect for every man's rights and reputation.

I am glad to be able to say that the Washington Herald, since I have had the honor to be its editor, has increased substantially in circulation and also in advertising.

I believe that many young women graduated from our colleges and many more graduated from the college of good sense, which is the American home, will find useful, profitable and congenial work in journalism.

Now Whiten Skin 3 to 5 Shades Overnight

New Way Removes Flaws Quickly

Instead of trying to cover up unsightly blackheads, freckles, weather stains and heart-breaking wrinkles — try this way that smooths the skin and whitens it — makes it three to five shades whiter overnight. It's the safest, surest way known, as any beauty authority will tell you, to make the skin lovely, pink and white and to keep it that way indefinitely.

Just get three ounces of Orchard White from any druggist and follow the easy directions. Put a little into the skin at bedtime and by morning you can see a big improvement. Ugly flaws disappear. The skin gets whiter and soon it is satiny smooth, youthfully fresh and beautiful. What's more, it stays that way. For in Orchard White there's a remarkable ingredient not found in any other preparation. It preserves the beauty of the skin and protects it from the ravages of the wind, rain, sun and dirt. If you really want a smooth, soft, beautiful pink and white skin try this successful way. You'll be happy that you did.

THE PENALTY OF GRAY HAIR

Gray hair—age—slipping. All these unpleasant ideas seem to go together. Yet, it is not at all necessary. Gray Hair often comes to a young head and people who have it are neither old nor incapable. But how often you hear people say, "Why, she has gray hair!" and—she is on the shelf.

This penalty need no longer handicap the woman who uses Canute Water. This is a clear, spring-like water, of wonderful properties which actually restore hair to its original girlhood color. No complicated "color plan"; no danger of getting brunette shade when your hair is blonde. Not only the one kind but the one bottle is enough. It really is surprising what successful, youthifying results it gives.

Apply Canute Water yourself, in the privacy of your own home. Many women in town are doing the same thing; they simply do not mention it. You need not mention it either. Just buy a bottle from any good druggist—and get rid of the "age penalty" in gray hair. Canute Water is so safe, so scientific and sure that your dealer knows it will satisfy you; if not, he will refund your money. Sold and recommended by Kaufmann's and all Mayflower Drug Stores or your own druggists. The Canute Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

ACID STOMACH! Here's a pleasant way to Get Rid of It

A bubbling effervescent drink that sets acid stomachs right in a jiffy. Tastes so good you'll like it for its taste alone. It has been FAMED in Europe since 1880. Italians drink it as we do soda water and it's an antacid that has no rival. So good even small children take it without coaxing. Gently laxative and altogether delicious. This easy pleasant way to rid yourself of hyperacidity is called

BRIOSCHI

(Pronounced Bree-osky)

75 cents the large can of 24 drinks. At any Italian store or your favorite druggist.

90 Penna. Cadets Sail on Schoolship

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania state nautical schoolship Annapolis, carrying 90 cadets from all parts of Pennsylvania, sailed yesterday from the Philadelphia Navy Yard under command of Capt. John F. Hines, U. S. N., retired.

The cruise will cover more than 9,000 miles. The Annapolis will stop at the Azores, London, Havre, Antwerp and Mediterranean ports.

$2,350,000 Telephone Project Announced

A steady increase in subscribers in the Grant and Court exchanges of the Bell Telephone Company necessitates a transfer to the dial system, which will cost $2,350,000, William Bradford, division manager, said today. The transfer is planned for the near future, Bradford said.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

CONSTRUCTION OF A small transmitter atop the William Penn Hotel for reception and relay of programs received from great distances is contemplated by KDKA engineers . . . the set will be used in picking up messages from European countries. Australia and exploring expeditions which are being serviced now with messages from KDKA . . . the Federal Radio Commission is considering the application at the present time, but it is unlikely that construction will begin until fall . . . We verified a report today that WWSW, at Hotel Schenley, plans to install a television transmitter . . . WJAS is remodeling its control room with new aluminum panels.

James Melton sings the signature of the WCAE String Trio tonight at 9:30—"Out of the Dusk to You."

* * *

"Skyward" is the theme song for an imaginary rocket trip around the world on WCAE at 8:30. Gladys Rice, Henry M. Neely and Nat Shilkret are the artists. We recommend this excursion as the most colorful highlight of the evening.

If anyone ever sounded like McNamee on the radio it was that boy Fred Webber last Friday night immediately following McNamee's description of the Schmeling-Stribling fight in Cleveland.

* * *

Question a Day:

I am going to New York soon and would like to visit the radio colony. Please tell me where it is.—Mrs. Grace K., Mt. Lebanon.

Answer—Because radio draws its talent from other fields—movies, stage, concert, etc.—there is no radio colony. The only radio colony we know of is that formed by the Lombardo Brothers, B. A. Rolfe and Claudette Colbert. They live in the same apartment. We shall be glad to give any Sun-Telegraph reader a letter of introduction to meet their favorite stars in person when visiting New York.

Post and Gatty — round the world fliers—are to make a country-wide tour under auspices of the National Broadcasting Company's Artists' Bureau, Pittsburgh is a tentative stop.

Starting tomorrow night the Goldman Band is to be heard every Thursday on WCAE at 9:30 in addition to the Wednesday and Saturday night broadcasts over KDKA . . .

Night appearances of those dear "Sisters of the Skillet" have been postponed one week.

Twilight Reveries

"Lives of great men all remind us we can make our lives sublime, and, departing, leave behind us, footprints on the sands of time."

To make lives sublime or at least a bit sweeter is the purpose of Count John K. Chapel's "Twilight Reveries" heard daily at 5 on KQV.

"Jack," once of the Russian nobility and knowing all the luxuries of the wealthy, "fell down and broke his crown" when revolt and terrorism struck his native land. This strange vicissitude catapulted him from the role of Count to that of merely another radio announcer in America, but it is perhaps the real background for the simplicity which dominates his "Reveries."

On his desk at KQV, the Count has an oft-quoted saying by Thoreau: "Simplicity is the order of all things."

It is simplicity itself which makes "Twilight Reveries" one of the most enjoyable of local daytime features.

Studio Lights

Launching of the new U. S. Navy dirigible "Akron" from Akron, O., is to be broadcast by NBC in a few weeks . . .

Sailing of a tramp freighter from New York and a description of activity in the transmitter house of a network key station are also "in the make" . . .

Which reminds us, why doesn't some Pittsburgh station broadcast a description of a studio for the benefit of people on farms who have never seen a radio station and are too far away to visit?

Creatore's Band replaces "Jones and Hare" for six weeks beginning Friday, July 24 . . . you're right, you read it here first . . .

Little Jack Little was a peppy shortstop in high school days.

"Peace is in the air" said Capt. Frank Hawks on KDKA last night in telling about his experiences abroad . . . "in the air" is right—aviation and radio are the most potent forces for peace . . .

An explanation of President Hoover's "War Debt Holiday" is to be given by Ogden L. Mills, under Secretary of the Treasury, on WJAS Tuesday, July 14 . . .

Frederick Landis, of WLW, says: "This is the strangest business depression in the history of the world. You can't find any place to work—and you can't find any place to park."

A big red robin has become a staff artist at WWSW and you may hear him some of these afternoons . . . he chirps outside the studio window every time a singer goes on the air . . . he has become quite tame and will take bread crumbs from the hand of Gladys Voyce, hostess . . .

Broadcasts from backstage of the Penn Theater are scheduled to begin Saturday, August 15, over WNBO, of Washington, Pa. . . . The Radio Commission willing.

A similar amount must be contributed by local authorities. There are 1,148 families in the county receiving such aid.

Teller Asks Repeal of 'Unsafe' Fireworks Law

THREE GIRLS HURT AS AUTO AND TROLLEY CRASH

KLINE COUNCIL AIDES BACK ORDINANCE

Casualty List Cut This Year, Herron Asserts; English, Connelley Mum

While hospital records revealed that many scores of persons were injured Saturday in Fourth of July celebrations and in the face of renewed protests from civic leaders, members of Mayor Charles H. Kline's City Council "majority" defend the city ordinance they recently passed authorizing unsupervised fireworks displays.

Sidney A. Teller, in behalf of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, today sent a letter to the Mayor and to Council members, in which he said:

"The record of injuries to life and damage to property for the recent Fourth of July shows without question how unsafe and unsane the present fireworks ordinance is. It allowed and made possible this great amount of unnecessary suffering and loss.

DOES NOT PROTECT

"It does not protect the children, the innocent bystander and the community as a whole from the danger of loss of life, loss of limb and loss of property.

"In all decency, there is now only one thing for City Council and the Mayor to do—wipe the present disgraceful fireworks ordinance off the books of the City of Pittsburgh. Put in its place immediately the ordinance proposed by Councilman Garland and supported by the civic, safety and school groups.

"The ordinance now on the books is not only a disgrace to the City of Pittsburgh, but as long as it remains there we will have, as we have had on the recent Fourth of July, death stalking constantly among the innocent children of our community."

DEFENDED BY HERRON

President of Council John S. Herron, who proposed the fireworks legislation, said:

"The casualty list was much smaller this year than in 1930. A large number of the fireworks accidents reported were from points outside the city limits. Many injuries here were from 'bootleg' fireworks and noise-making devices prohibited by the ordinance."

Councilman Harry A. Little said:

"A survey I made disclosed a lot of the accidents attributed to fireworks here were from points as far away as Beaver Falls and Greensburg. Other accidents were caused by devices we forbid. There were less accidents this year than ever before."

COUNCIL SCORES CITY ENGINEERS

At a session featured by criticisms directed at the number of "petty conferences" held by Public Works Department engineers, City Council yesterday ordered "an impartial survey" to find how much it will cost to repair the Duquesne ramp at the Manchester bridge.

The ramp, according to Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert, is in poor condition.

John S. Herron, president of Council said:

"The department has too many "petty conferences." I'm tired of listening to these reports. Let's get something done."

Chairman W. Y. English asked:

"What can we do about it?"

Herron replied:

"Lay off some of those engineers down stairs."

Councilman Charles Anderson said:

"From the looks of things up here during the Evans probe there must be a couple of hundred engineers working for the city."

Council's Finance Committee moved that Reppert confer with "an impartial engineer," and find how much it would cost to have an "impartial report."

HIGHLAND POOL WAGE FUND LACKING

Several Score Workmen Face Pay Delay; Herron Flays Works Department

Several score workmen employed in construction of the new swimming pool at Highland Park will be unable to collect wages unless an emergency appropriation from Council and the Mayor is forthcoming within the next few days, Public Works Engineer Charles M. Reppert said today.

Other developments in the long-delayed opening of the new pool were:

1. President John S. Herron, of Council, flayed the Public Works Department for unpreparedness in notifying Council of the matter sooner.

2. Herron criticized Engineer Nathan Schein for alleged failure to carry out plans ordered by Council when the project was started.

Reppert said at least $18,000 is needed immediately to pay the men and continue work. Ultimate cost will be $200,000 instead of the original $150,000 provided by Council.

Herron criticized Schein for failure, he alleged, in not providing flood lights at the bottom of the pool as a safety measure. This, Herron said, would permit life guards to see the bottom of the pool during night bathing and prevent drownings. Council ordered Schein to make an inspection of other pools here and to embody improvements in the Highland Park project.

Aside from the emergency fund needed to meet the payroll, Council will prepare a bond issue for the difference between the original $150,000 and the final $200,000 estimate.

Hoover Joins Long List of Saviors Of Europeans

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Effect of the Hoovatorium has been wide, deep and handsome.

Mr Hoover joins the long list of saviors of Europe. Nobody knows what they're saving it for.

Mr. Mellon wil have a Slovakian street named in his honor. Subject to change without notice.

London is happy, Paris joyous and Berlin delirious with postponed obligations.

Austrian sculptors are working on a big bust of the originator of the Young plan. It will be a very big bust.

Mr. Hoover's trans-Atlantic telephone bill for saving Europe was $7,000. And all he used was the ear-piece.

In return, Hindenburg cabled a short message of thanks. And waited until he could get reduced night rates.

No wonder Europe is happy. You'd be happy too if you had just finessed a trey through all the face cards.

The debt pact entitles us to a year of financial aphasia. We hope the indemity hiatus isn't accompanied by permanent loss of memory and too many white corpuscles in the adding machines.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 8.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Now I can't be so truthful about these congressmen in Washington, for the head one of all of 'em drove out with Congressman Crail to my igloo to see me, Tilson, the Republican majority leader (who will perhaps be the next speaker). We talked over old times when we used to meet and tell jokes in Longworth's room. He was called in to consult on Mr. Hoover's debt plan. It was well thought out and no politics involved, as he fed quite a few Democrats during the huddle. Tilson says "We are over the worst." Let's hope he is right. Even a congressman can be right occasionally.

Brothers Join in Observing Triple Birthday

A triple birthday was celebrated yesterday by three Ambrose brothers, 127 Roundtop street, Crafton Heights.

All were born July 7, but in different years. Raymond is 28, Alfred, 19, and John, 12. They celebrated their birthdays just as they have in other years, and just like other people celebrate their birthdays. They didn't consider it unusual that three were congratulated instead of only one.

Their mother, Mrs. Mary Ambrose, said she had never heard of another family with a triple birthday.

Mrs. Ambrose has three other children, Joseph, 23; Clara, 31, and Theresa, 16.

The cooling system consists of two zinc washtubs, two zinc garbage cans, one electric fan and 200 pounds of ice daily. Although the Gibsons have not experimented with a thermometer, their system has been working for three years, they say.

The revolving fan keeps the cool air from the melting ice diffused about the room.

MOTHER TELLS OF VISIT TO WAR GRAVES

East End Woman Whose Son Lost Life at Sea Returns After Gold Star Voyage

Mrs. Mary Condon, 60, of 513 Sheridan avenue, a Gold Star Mother, is back from a month's trip in France and England. She was the only Pittsburgh mother of a sailor lost at sea in the group of 214 mothers and 14 widows who left New York May 24 and returned June 26. These mothers and widows had no graves to visit in France. Their dead were buried in the sea.

The most lasting memory of the whole trip, Mrs. Condon said, was the ceremony conducted on the high seas in midocean over the places where the boys were lost.

VISIT CEMETERIES

She liked London best of all the cities she saw, she declared, because the buildings were not so high. She said:

"Paris' parks are so beautiful they make Schenley and Highland parks look like back yards."

The women sailed on the Roosevelt and came back on the George Washington. They landed in Cherbourg, France, stayed in Paris five days, visited the Meuse, Argonne, Romaigne, St. Mihiel, Thiacourt, Aisne, Marne, Belleau and Suresnes cemeteries in France and the Brockwood Cemetery in London.

GOOD SAILORS

There was an 86-year-old mother from Oklahoma and a 71-year-old mother from Ohio in the group, Mrs. Condon said. They were good sailors and did not suffer greatly from seasickness. Mrs. Condon was ill only two days coming back, she said.

Her son, Francis Condon, 23, enlisted in April, 1918. He entered active service June 11 on the naval collier Ticonderoga and was lost at sea September 30, 1918. She has six other children living.

Of the entire trip, she said:

"Europe is lovely but I like my own country."

ADVISORY BOARD FOR HIGHLAND ZOO PROPOSED IN COUNCIL

SEEK TO HALT DISEASES OF ANIMALS

Council Action Due Monday On Proposals Made by Connelley; Waltons to Aid

Councilman Clifford B. Connelley, chairman of the parks and libraries committee, informed his associates yesterday a report would be made Monday on plans to improve conditions at the Highland Park Zoo.

It is likely, he said, that legislation will be presented to provide an advisory committee for the zoo officials.

Members of the Izaak Walton League and the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society were to confer with councilmen yesterday but the meeting was postponed.

Lions at the zoo, the league's report shows, are suffering from rickets. Lack of sunshine and crowded quarters are given as the reasons. One animal has already died and three others face death from the malady, it was said.

Connelley's plan, he declared, is to have Mayor Kline appoint an advisory committee consisting of a prominent zoologist from one of the universities here, along with members of various city bureaus, to assist Head Keeper Arnold Schaumann and Supt. James Moore, of the Parks Bureau, in outlining plans for the care of animals.

Legislation to provide funds for improvement of the zoo is expected in the near future. The Walton League proposes removal of the bear cages to a natural hillside at the zoo and placing of the lions so they may get sunshine.

DEPUTY, WOMAN TELL OF ROW

Justice of the Peace E. M. Cox, of Munhall, reserved his decision when Deputy Sheriff Nicholas Spavonic was arraigned before him on assault and battery charges last night. The charges were preferred by Miss Mildred Currie, 25, of 668 West Seventh avenue, West Homestead, who testified that the deputy struck her on the arm with a blackjack.

Miss Currie said Spavonic came to her home last Thursday to levy on furniture of Mrs. John Poth, who had resided on the third floor of the Currie home. She said that while she was passing through the hall the deputy struck her.

Spavonic declared that he entered the house, identified himself as a deputy to Miss Currie, and that when he attempted to ascend the stairs Miss Currie scratched him and tore his clothing. He said he rapped her on the knuckles with the blackjack to make her loose her hold on him.

After hearing both sides, Justice Cox announced that he would make known his decision Saturday.

MOTHER HIDING GUN SHOOTS HER SON

Accidentally Wounds Boy In Attempt to Prevent Husband From Ending Life

Hiding firearms to prevent her husband from carrying out his threats to kill himself, Mrs. Mendal Rawhide, of Colfax lane, Frazier Township, late yesterday accidentally shot her son, Frank, 16, according to a report to county detectives. Suffering from gunshot wounds in the abdomen, the boy is in a serious condition in Allegheny Valley Hospital, Tarentum. Two fingers on the right hand of Mrs. Rawhide were shot off in the accidental discharge of the gun.

According to Glassmere police, the woman's husband has been out of work and has made repeated threats that he intended killing himself. Flourishing a revolver, they said, Rawhide appeared before his wife and was disarmed after a bullet was shot into the floor. After searching the house for other weapons, Mrs. Rawhide reported to the authorities, she started to hide a shotgun under the porch to their home when it was accidentally discharged.

French Lieutenant, Diver, Suffocated

TOULON, France, July 8.—(AP.)—Lieut. Paul Jehenne, son of Admiral Jehenne, who commanded the French marines at Dixmude, was suffocated today while experimenting with a new diving apparatus from the French submarine Calypso. As first officer of the vessel he went down to the bottom of the bay wearing the apparatus, fainted there, and died shortly after he had been hauled to the surface.

Bellamy was divorced from his first wife at Detroit last month. Miss Willard obtained a Reno decree recently.

2 Friends Lynched, Negro to be Jailed

ANDERSON, Ind., July 8.—(AP.)—Herbert Cameron, Marion Negro youth who escaped punishment at the hands of a mob which lynched his two Negro companions at Marion, Ind., last August, today awaited 2 to 21-year sentence for voluntary manslaughter.

He was convicted at Madison Circuit Court late yesterday of being an accomplice in the hold-up which resulted in the death of Claude Deeter, of Fairmount, Ind. Sentence will be pronounced next week. The case was brought here from Grant County on a change of venue.

Of course, we pack OLD GOLDS in an air-tight, germ-proof package.

Naturally, in giving you a BETTER cigarette . . . we want it to reach your lips factory-fresh . . . without any loss of the proper moisture or fragrance.

But after all, you don't smoke the package. It's what's inside that counts most.

When you smoke an OLD GOLD you smoke not only a fresh cigarette, but a PURE-TOBACCO cigarette. Free of coriander and other greasy, artificial flavors that burn into breath-tainting, teeth-staining vapors.

"Keep Kissable with OLD GOLDS" is no idle claim. For OLD GOLDS' clean, sun-ripened, Nature-flavored tobaccos leave no objectionable odor either on your breath, or your clothing . . . or in the room.

BUCS, BRUINS OPEN SERIES

Sport Comment

HOME STAY TO DECIDE FATE OF BUCS

THE LONGEST STAY of the season at the home grounds, starting today, will tell what's to become of the Pirates. Before they go East again on their final long trip, the Bucs will play 33 games at Forbes Field out of a straight string of 38. A winning drive during that period will give them a chance to make a creditable finish. A continuation of their gait during the first part of the race will doom them to a berth near the cellar.

Forrest Jensen

Playing at home so far this year has been anything but a help to the Rovers. They have lost two-thirds of their local engagements, whereas on the road they have almost broken even. But they're in better shape to take advantage of home opportunities this time. A rare youngster has been uncovered in Howdy Groskloss to plug the hole at second base. Forrest Jensen has returned wearing the label of a real ball player; Steve Swetonic and Charley Wood are additional pitchers available, and several of the men holding down regular positions are due for prolonged hitting streaks.

IT LOOKS LIKE a favorable opportunity for the Ensmen to do something. In all fairness it must be admitted that they have had no such chance until now. They have played bad ball, lots of it, but the weird schedule also has been a contributing factor to their poor showing.

With the season practically half over, the Bucs have been privileged to play only about one-third of their games on their own grounds. Of the 70 contests completed by them up to today, only 24 were played at home against 46 on the road. That means they have been forced to play abroad in two out of every three games on an average, the most difficult schedule imposed upon any club in either of the major leagues.

THE TRANSFORMATION OF the Robins from feeble trailers into formidable pennant contenders has been due in no small measure to a tremendous brace on the part of two regular pitchers who were far below par during the early weeks. They are Bill Clark and Ray Phelps.

After a poor start, Clark has now won five games in succession, three of them shutouts. Phelps, who started his mates back on the winning road again yesterday, was knocked off the hill in 12 of his first 14 starts this year, but has turned in three consecutive victories since he found his stride.

AS BURLEIGH GRIMES goes, so go the Cardinals. The early calculations of Fandom that the chances of the Redbirds for another pennant would depend on the success of Grimes in maintaining his spring form have been borne out by developments. Grimes has lost five of the last six games he pitched to a decision, and has been knocked out of two others. Up to the stage at which Burleigh began to skid the Cards had played .700 ball, but since the spitball ace started his slump on June 5 they have only broken even in 34 games, and of their last 16 games they have won only six. Yesterday's double defeat in Chicago cut their lead to three games, and the margin exists entirely in the victory total, the Giants being tied with them in the "Lost" column. Only three and a half games separate the first and fourth clubs.

George Earnshaw

THE IRON-MAN qualities of George Earnshaw are in evidence again. Though he had hurled a full game on Sunday he was right back in there 48 hours later to go the distance again and take yesterday's game from the Senators.

Connie Mack showed his contempt for so-called baseball hoodoos in sending Earnshaw back, as prior to yesterday the big righthander had won only one game from the Senators since 1929, while losing to them six times and being lifted on two other occasions. Until last Sunday, Earnshaw had not gone the distance once against the Johnsons in seven straight starts in two seasons.

EVEN IF THEY lose today's play-off of Monday's tie game, the Athletics are out of danger for the present, leaving them with a clear lead of five and a half games over the second-place Senators, or two full games longer than the distance between the first and fourth clubs in the National League race.

Earnshaw's victory was his fourteenth of the year, and with 16 credited to Grove it follows that these two pitchers have accounted for exactly 30 of the Mackmen's 52 triumphs, or more games than have been won by the entire staffs of the Pirates, Reds, Red Sox, Tigers or White Sox.

BOXING MEN ARE beginning to see rare versatility in Max Schmeling in addition to finding him a better fighter than they rated him. As Wilbur Wood points out, Maxie has flashed a different style in each of four major bouts in this country. In defeating Joe Sekyra, Schmeling chased him around the ring with the speed of a lightweight and pecked him to pieces with fast straight lefts, keeping his right hand idle. Against Johnny Risko Max slugged toe to toe and knocked out the rubber man for the first time in his career.

THEN HE MET Paulino, beat him at his own specialty of mauling in the early rounds, and later cut him to ribbons with a two-fisted attack. In the Sharkey fight Max did not box at all, being merely a catcher for four rounds, and when he finally did get started in the fourth Sharkey ended the affair with a foul.

Against Stribling, the German shifted again and gave a masterful defensive exhibition, in which it had been thought he would be found lacking. His blocking was surprisingly good, and he also showed a change in attack by getting in close and hammering the Georgian steadily about the middle with both hands while Willie was looking constantly for rights to the head. Probably any old style will serve to beat Carnera in September.

JESS QUATSE, veteran Pitt tackle and for two years the strong man of the Panther gridiron forces, probably will have to relinquish his title this coming fall when John Valenti steps up to the varsity squad.

Valenti, the 287-pound lineman from the eastern part of the state who celebrated his first year at Pitt by working off more than 50 pounds, is still a husky enough specimen at 235 to threaten the unseating of the reigning Sandow of the Panthers.

John Valenti

IF VALENTI AND Quatse decide to settle the question of supremacy by an actual test it will be hard on the telephone directories, as the tearing of the latter with the bare hands is the accepted method of demonstrating strength. Not only will Valenti be a challenger for Quatse's strong-man title, but he will also make a bid for a varsity berth at left tackle, the job held down by Jess all last season. Under the circumstances, Quatse will have little chance to loaf. The left tackle situation will be further complicated by the rise of another promising sophomore aspirant in the person of Johnny Meredith, Bellefonte Academy graduate. Meredith is frail, compared to his two rivals, tipping the beam at less than 185 pounds, but he is said to be shifty and aggressive enough to make up for lack of heft.

MAX TO DEFEND CROWN IN SEPTEMBER

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP.)—Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, and Leon See, representing Primo Carnera, meet today with Madison Square Garden attorneys to sign contracts for a heavyweight championship match in September.

An effort will be made to hold the contest in New York, but there appeared little likelihood that the New York State Athletic Commission will sanction any other boxer than Jack Sharkey for a title match with Schmeling here.

Chicago, Philadelphia and New Jersey are considered possible sites.

The most official act of today's confab will be the posting of a $25,000 forfeit by See.

It had been believed that the cumbersome Italian would be sidetracked in favor of the winner of the July 22 bout between Mickey Walker, one time king of the 160-pounders, and Jack Sharkey, the strong man from Boston.

JACOBS CAUTIOUS

Joe Jacobs, cautious to a fault, informed the Garden he preferred Carnera to Sharkey. Jacobs' preference is not hard to understand when it is remembered that Sharkey all but knocked Schmeling's ears off before fouling the German in their 1930 bout.

Carnera, who has had his share of troubles since landing in this country, is likely to be suspended a second time by the New York Commission for his dealings with Schmeling. Under the commission's rules a fighter who deals with a suspended boxer is subject to suspension himself.

Carnera came up for discussion at the commission meeting yesterday. The ring moguls notified See that in the future all of Carnera's opponents must be approved by them and that all "exhibitions" were out. That is, that all the Italian's fights in this state must be to a decision.

EUROPE AFTER GO

NEW YORK, July 8.—Jefferson Davis Dickson, Europe's foremost boxing promoter, yesterday tossed his hat and a $250,000 old into the badly muddled heavyweight situation.

In cablegrams to Joe Jacobs and Leon See, Dickson became an open competitor of Madison Square Garden for a championship match between Max Schmeling, of Germany, and Primo Carnera, of Italy.

Dickson offered to guarantee a purse of $250,000, which the fighters could divide any way they saw fit, with the privilege of 75 per cent of the receipts. He wants to stage the match at Stade Colombes, Paris, on September 17, but also has the White City Stadium, near London, and a Berlin site available.

Reynolds Advances In Crafton Net Play

Bill Reynolds, last year's champion, entered the third round of the Crafton junior tennis tournament yesterday, when he disposed of Bob Diehl, 6-3, 6-1. The summary:

First round: Charles Daschbach defeated Bill Gardner, 6-4, 6-4; Dan Carr defeated George Bilque, 6-1, 6-1; Bob Diehl defeated John Bilque, 6-0, 6-2; Davis defeated Thompson by default.

Second round: Bill Reynolds defeated Bob Diehl, 6-3, 6-1; McDonald defeated Don Mosmer, 6-3, 6-2; James Cox defeated Herbert by default; Don Carr defeated Dudley Weiss, 6-4, 6-2.

It subsequently was translated into English and is described as a volume of Oriental fiction which has no equal in European literature in its power to impress the imagination.

POLLOCK WINS W. VA. MEDAL

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 8.—(AP.)—Jules Pollock, of Wheeling, took a step toward his ninth West Virginia golf championship by becoming the medalist in the eighteenth annual tournament yesterday.

The Wheeling star, who eight times defeated all comers in the state amateur tournament, turned in a card of 147 for the 36-hole qualifying round. This was six strokes better than his nearest competitor, F. G. Bannerot, Jr., Pittsburgh star, now residing in Charleston.

Tying for third place were Fred M. Hawkins, Huntington, semi-finalist last year, and Harold Bloch, Wheeling, each with 154. Ira Rodgers, Morgantown, the 1929 champion, was next with 155.

The Stifel family, of Wheeling, long prominent in star golf circles, was still out in front in the woman's tournament. At least one, however, will be out by the end of today's play.

Fritzie Stifel, last year's champion and this year's favorite, who defeated Olive Kahlo, White Sulphur Springs, 8 and 7, in the first round, today will play her sister, Emily.

Janice Beagle, Grafton's 17-year-old contender, defeated Virginia Harper, Wheeling, 9 and 7. Mrs. E. W. Stifel, mother of Fritzie and Emily, found the going comparatively easy against Mrs. M. G. Geiger, Charleston, and won, 4 and 3. Emily Stifel defeated Mrs. Herbert Markle, Bluefield, 6 and 4.

CLEVELAND, July 8.—(AP.)—Septimus Palin, of Indianapolis, won his first Edwards Stake when he triumphed in the twenty-second renewal of the historic $3,000 event here yesterday with Star Etawah.

M.-A. MOGULS MEET TODAY

WHEELING, W. Va., July 8.—Middle Atlantic League moguls will meet here tonight at the Fort Henry Club to discuss the many grievances that have arisen during the first half of the season. Fireworks are expected as the schedule is likely to be changed for the second half. Plans for the second half, which opens July 10, also will be discussed.

There is a remote possibility that two or three of the clubs in the greatest financial straits may find the going too hard, for, should the schedule be changed, certain clubs, led by Wheeling and Charleston, will hold out for a straight guarantee on each game, rather than a percentage on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. This plan will meet with a lot of strenuous opposition from some of the clubs that are not drawing so well.

Secretary Russell Hockenberry has instructed club secretaries to come prepared to settle back percentage due the league or to take the consequences. Several of them are in arrears.

Such minor details as settling the Altoona franchise situation, and that of the Parkersburg franchise, which was shifted from Hagerstown, will be given a going over by the league members.

McKeesport, Pa., and Steubenville, O., are said to be willing to lift a franchise should one be released.

Cumberland clinched the first-half championship of the league yesterday by defeating Altoona, 5 to 4, in 12 innings. Leo Mackey, of Pittsburgh, is manager of the Colts.

DELVECCHIO ILL

Perry DelVecchio, pro at the Greensburg Country Club, is convalescing at his home from a sunstroke suffered a few days ago. DelVecchio played in a temperature of 105 in the National Open tourney at Toledo last Thursday and Friday, and he was stricken shortly after his return home.

TWO COURSE MARKS FALL

Two new course records have been established at district country club links.

Joseph R. Royston, Highland amateur star, set a new mark at the Wildwood Country Club yesterday when he covered the par 72 layout in 70. The former mark, a 72, was made by W. J. Jacquette, Wildwood satilite, last year. Joe was playing with Nelson Zimmerman, Wilwood pro; Vincent Eldred, Highland pro, and G. H. Langer.

Walter Johnstone, Butler Country Club pro, established a new course record at that layout on Monday when he scored a brilliant 68 over that par 72 links. He was playing with R. B. Greer, Jr., Butler amateur, and they defeated Vince Eldred, Highland pro, and James Ramsay, Highland amateur, 3 and 2.

The figures for the course records:

Time of game—3:30 o'clock.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

An exceptionally long sport program will be started at Forbes Field this afternoon when the Pirates take on the Cubs in the first battle of a four-game set. Except for a few Sunday jumps, the Buccaneers will show on the home ground until August 10. A flock of doubleheaders will enliven the long stand at the Oakland Orchard, so the lovers of the diamond game will have plenty of opportunity to see the Freebooters in action, and the latter, in turn, will have an excellent chance to turn the sour picture which has been spread before the team's followers since the season began.

The beginning of the long siege at the home of the Rovers will not furnish any setback. The Cubs landed in town this morning fresh from a sugar-coated triumph aver the pace-setting Cardinals. The double victory gained by the Bears may have the effect of making the race a tight number.

CUBS IN FLAG FIGHT

The big day enjoyed by Rogers Hornsby & Co. before leaving Chicago had the effect of lifting the Bears back to third place, and they are not so far away from the top. In any event, the Bruins are apt to be fired with pennant ambitions this afternoon as they take on the Pirates.

The jumpoff battle is likely to find Heinie Meine on the mound for the Buccos. Lester Sweetland may get the slab ticket from Manager Hornsby. The southpaw has been quite effective against the Buccos this year, but the Pirates of late have perked up in their batting, so there may be a different tale to relate if the left-hander attempts to throw them for a loss.

Manager Ens and his Pittsburgh athletes reached the home port late last night on top of their barnstorming jaunt into Ohio. The Pirates defeated the Reds Sunday in their last championship competition, they having four victories to show for their last five struggles. Moreover, the team is taking a brace, now that the infield troubles appear to be melting away.

HITTING IMPROVES

Gus Suhr's batting in two pinch occasions has caused much joy in the breast of Skipper Ens. Ens sent Gus up to bat in the tenth inning of the morning game of the Fourth of July and the San Francisco Dutchman kept the Pirates in the fray with a thundering homer. On the following day he batted in an emergency and drove in the winning run with a triple. If Gus can get back to his normal gait at the plate there will be much joy in the Pirate camp, despite the fact that George Grantham, the present first sacker, is batting at a furious clip. Pie Traynor and Adam Comorosky also have shown some little signs of coming out of their batting lethargy.

Outfielder Woodie Jensen, who was farmed out to the Newark club of the International League early in the season, is expected to rejoin his mates here today. Woodie was out under a short-time option and his pace was so convincing the home officials de-

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Anybody who fancies underdogs must love the way those Brooklyns up and take a bite out of the Giants' hide every time. Since 1865 the best encore America has had to the Civil War is the Robins vs. the Giants. Every game is a battle of Gettysburg and a double-header is the Monitor and Merrimac thrown in.

It's only a nickel carfare from Nick Altrock Manhattan to Ebbets Field, but the Giants might as well be a million miles from home when they step out into the pop bottle zone. And if the Cards chisel this year's pennant from McGraw, they can thank Brooklyn for blasting the biggest stump along their right of way.

SIXTEEN TEAMS OPEN FIGHT FOR GOLF CROWN

GREER M'ILVAIN OUT TO KEEP STATE TITLE

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Greer McIlvain

While 16 golf teams started morning and afternoon play on four courses in quest of the Western Pennsylvania club team championship, Greer McIlvain, of Oakmont, was beginning his fight in Philadelphia in defense of the Pennsylvania amateur crown which he won at Allegheny last year.

While only a select group of locals is playing at Aronomink in the state amateur tilting, it is a mighty strong squad, including Watts Gunn, of Oakmont; Fred Brand, Jr., of Shannopin, and James Hammond, of the Pittsburgh Field Club. McIlvain hopes to retain the honor another year.

The Pittsburgh Field Club, Fox Chapel and Oakmont are the scenes of the local team competition today. This morning the squads are paired in eights, with two players from each club competing, while this afternoon they will play individual match play, with one player from each club playing in fours.

Stanton Heights, Valley Heights, Longue Vue and Highland, the defending champion, are battling it out at the Field Club; South Hills, Fox Chapel, Hannastown and Allegheny are competing at Oakmont; Pittsburgh Field Club, Greensburg, Oakmont and Alcoma are playing Fox Chapel, and Westmoreland, Shannopin, Chartiers Heights and St. Clair are competing at South Hills.

Helen MacDonald, of Chicago, first woman golf professional to be recognized, gave an exhibition at the Nemacolin Country Club yesterday. This morning she gave a demonstration at the Westmoreland Country Club at 10 o'clock; at 2 o'clock she showed how to hit 'em at Edgewood, and tonight she performs at Bob-o-link. Miss MacDonald continues her tour with an exhibition at Warren, Pa., tomorrow.

St. Clair will stage its annual women's invitation tournament tomorrow with more than 175 entered in the event. Virtually every club in the district will be represented. The event is an 18-hole medal play affair. Mrs. Thomas E. Griffin is chairman of the committee and she will be assisted by Mrs. Charles Gould and Mrs. W. E. Judy.

cided he was needed here. Jensen batted almost .350 in something like 50 games for Newark. It will be hard for the clever Dane to force his way into the Pittsburgh outfield, but if P. Waner or Comorosky don't respond more consistently at the plate, Jensen is apt to get a lot of work.

CAMBRIDGE BEATEN

The Pittsburgh Pirates swamped the Cambridge Greys, 15 to 6, in an exhibition game at Cambridge, O., yesterday. The Bucs recorded 21 hits. Fifteen hundred fans witnessed the one-sided contest. George Grant was touched for 14 blows, but was never in danger.

The score by innings:

Two Knockouts Mark Ring Show

Two technical knockouts marked the amateur boxing show staged last night by the Twenty-seventh Ward Athletic Club. Sport Vignettes

MAX SCHMELING — PRIMO CARNERA

Above you see Max Schmeling, now a more highly regarded heavyweight champion of the world, as a result of his knockout victory over Young Stribling at Cleveland last Friday night, and Primo Carnera, the Man Mountain, of Italy, who likely will be his next opponent, the bout to be held in mid-September . . . The photo was taken when Schmeling scaled in for his Stribling battle . . . How do you think their meeting will materialize?

If you ask me, I'd say Schmeling ought to enter the ring a top-heavy favorite to decisively defeat Primo, and perhaps knock him out . . . Carnera has little save size to recommend him as a heavyweight "menace" . . . He is speedy along with it, for a big fellow, but his punch is nothing to write home about . . . He has been knocking out a flock of setups, but Jim Maloney twice went the full 10 rounds with him and won the decision in their first bout and lost by a close margin in their second tilt, and Jimmy has been duck soup for fellows like Jack Sharkey and Ernie Schaaf.

Fighting as he did against Paulino Uzcudun and Stribling, Schmeling should take the oversized Carnera like nobody's business . . . He is too thorough a workman to bow to Carnera's limited capabilities and too phlegmatic in temperament to be scared by Primo's size . . . Reputations mean absolutely nothing to the German when it comes to making matches and he now has firmly established himself as a good, if not a great, champion . . . Following the Carnera fight, Maxie, next year, will be called upon to meet the winner of the Jack Sharkey-Mickey Walker battle, which will be staged for the benefit of Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Milk Fund, at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, July 22 . . . That winner should be Sharkey, who combines too much scientific boxing skill, speed and size for the Toy Bulldog, who, for all of his fine success against big, slow-moving heavyweights, does not figure to be so hot against a moving target and sharp hitter like Sharkey.

Can Schmeling defeat Sharkey in a return bout? . . . The public will pay a pretty penny to see the answer to that question. . . Sharkey outclassed Maxie in their meeting in New York last summer up to the time he lost on an accidental foul in the fourth round, and at the time it appeared as if the former Gob could repeat the drubbing any time. . . .Things have changed since then, however. Both Paulino, before the Sharkey bout, and Stribling since have beaten Schmeling in the early rounds, but he has gone on to outlast them and then handed them terrific beatings. . . Drawing a line through these two

THREE QUALIFY AT SCHENLEY

Three places were filled, and another will be after a playoff tomorrow afternoon, on Pittsburgh's team which will travel to the national public links championship, at Keller's course, St. Paul, early next month, following the 36-hole qualifying round staged over the Schenley Park municipal links, under the supervision of Kenneth C. Witherow, U. S. G. A. public links committeeman, yesterday.

The former national king, Carl F. Kauffman, and a member of last year's team at Jacksonville, Carl Lunden, deadlocked for the medal honors in the small but select field by scoring 131s, each having 66 in the first round and 65 in their second. Harry Ramsay, former Kiski star, rated the third place on the team by virtue of his fine 66-68—134 tally.

Francis Lally and John Pasikowski were deadlocked at 136, the former scoring a pair of 68s and the latter 67-69, and will play it out at 18 holes tomorrow to decide which is to make the trip. The tilt begins at 3 o'clock. The cards of the qualifiers:

BOWL MATCHES M'TIERNAN, BELMONT

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

The fistic "natural" of the season in Pittsburgh is virtually closed for one week from next Monday night in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock.

It is, of course, that much-talked-about biffing bee between Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, and Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock.

They've been the bitterest sort of enemies for a couple of seasons. They boxed a few times as amateurs and then branched out as pros. Bunny Buntach, manager of McTiernan, is the former pilot of Belmont, who now is handled by Frank Klaus, former middleweight champion of the world.

Neither McTiernan nor Belmont has been going any too well in recent battles, but that fact means nothing to the fans insofar as a meeting between the pair is concerned. It's a red-hot thing, and has been all along, just awaiting the proper moment to be presented.

M'TIERNAN BOXES YAROSZ

Meanwhile McTiernan tapers off training today for his 10-round windup battle with Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, at Hickey Park, Millvale, tomorrow night. This has all the trappings of a pip of a brawl, with Yarosz undefeated in 43 professional battles and aiming for higher estate. Billy Holt and Nordi Smith, local Negro welterweights, box the eight-round semi-final, Eddie Hebner meets Meyer Frager in the second bout, and Johnny Warner and Frenchy Jennings are in the opener.

Between Rounds

Tommy Crawley's victory over Frank Fariello in New York Monday night marked his second knockout triumph in as many starts. He recently stopped Johnny Gaito, of New York, in a bout in the East and is matched now with Eddie Cerda at White Plains, N. Y., one week from tonight.

Tony Falco will box Harry Blitman in one of the 10-round bouts on the Benny Bass-Kid Chocolate card at the Phillies' Park in Philadelphia, one week from tonight. Baby Joe Gans and Paulie Walker will box the opener and Vidal Gregorio will be one of the principals in another number.

Johnny Jadick, of Philadelphia, and Tony Herrara, of Chicago, do the honors at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night, and the bout shapes up as a good one between topliners.

The card has been completed for the Jadich-Herrera show with the signing of Jack Tracey and Tiger West for the eight-round semi-final. Andy Andruzzi and

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES TO DECLINE

List Opens Heavy, Rallies For Time, Then Sells Off; Bears Hammer Steel

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP.)—With the war debt plan proposed and finally put into effect, the stock market was left with nothing to ponder for the moment but the reports of the state of domestic industry and trade.

As such reports are anything but illuminating in this period of midsummer quiet, share prices fluctuated uncertainly, generally working lower, in listless trading.

The market opened heavy, rallied for a time under leadership of the rails and sold off again after midday, with coppers notably weak. Bear pressure against U. S. Steel was again apparent, that issue getting down about 3 points or roughly 10 points under the peak of the recent recovery.

Coppers were depressed by final recognition of the slump in domestic prices by Copper Exporters, Inc., which reduced its price ½ cent to a basis of 6½ cents domestic.

The petroleum industry, like copper, continues to struggle with burdensome stocks.

The steel trade reviews reported some further slackening of output, now down close to 30 per cent of capacity, but there has been considerable resumption of activity after the holiday week-end and in keeping with the normal seasonal trend, this month should see the bottom.

Midsummer quiet in the motor industry is keeping steel depressed. General Motors' June sales report was fairly favorable, however. June sales were slightly more than for the month of June, 1930.

The weekly report of electric power consumption was moderately pleasing.

The weekly report of freight car loadings has been delayed for a day.

Fresh news from abroad was scarcely of a character to influence the local market.

The placing of a guaranty fund of 500,000,000 marks at the disposal of the Reichsbank by large German financial and industrial concerns was regarded as highly reassuring.

JUNE BUILDING FIGURES UP

NEW YORK, July 8.—June construction contract awards in the metropolitan area of New York were well ahead of May and only a little under the total for June of last year, F. W. Dodge Corporation reports. The total for last month was $76,602,500 compared with $62,178,600 in May and $80,324,900 in June of 1930. A nearly even division of valuation between the three major classes of construction was made for the month. Residential building held a slight lead with $26,832,800, public works and utilities totaled $25,479,100, and non-residential building $24,290,600.

LIFE INSURANCE FIRMS FACE PROBLEMS

Abnormal Borrowing of Cash Value of Policies Raises New Questions

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, July 8.—The prolonged business depression has raised numerous problems which the great life insurance companies must face candidly and with energy.

There has been, since the panic, an extraordinary and abnormal tendency on the part of policyholders to borrow the cash value of the policy, and the amount of the loan is deducted from the proceeds to beneficiaries in case of death. Moreover, during the life of the policy the strain on the policyholder is abnormally great so long as he must pay, in addition to the premium for insurance protection, interest on the loan incurred.

Mr. Rukeyser

Some outside authorities think that perhaps the insurance companies have erred in making their policies too liquid—too ready a basis for borrowing. In cold truth, the situation will inevitably lead to numerous twists and lapses.

It is considered poor ethics for an insurance man to twist a policyholder from an old policy to a new, but the policyholder is rightly interested primarily in the underlying actuarial realities. Under the present setup of policies, the companies unwittingly encourage the economic waste of twisting by failing to increase the death benefits in accordance with the age of the policy. This practice encourages the scrapping of old policies for new. A sensible reform, which would involve a thoroughgoing change in rates, would be to make the death benefits of a policy equal to the face value plus the amount of premiums paid in. Such a procedure would discourage shifts from old to new policies.

RAIL MEN TALK OF MERGER

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP.)—The executives of the major eastern railroads considering a plan for consolidation into four huge systems, met yesterday, and after their meeting reported "substantial progress."

Aside from the brief formal statement of the meeting and the report of progress, there was no official information released. The executives said they would meet again, but did not announce a date or place.

Humble Reduces Texas Crude Oil

AUSTIN, July 8.—Humble Oil and Refining Company has made reductions in crude oil prices in Texas ranging from 9 to 17 cents a barrel.

In North and North Central Texas there is a flat cut of 15 cents on all gravities; in Gray County, 11 cents; Carson and Hutchinson counties, 10 cents; all West Texas, 15 cents; Gulf Coast fields, 13 cents; Darst Creek and Salt Flat, 17 cents; Southwest Texas, 9 cents, and Pettus, 15 cents.

Humble withdrew its prices in East Texas about a month ago.

Sears Cuts Price On 'Champion' Tire

CHICAGO, July 8.—Sears, Roebuck & Co. has reduced the price of its "Champion" tire an average of over 5 per cent, effective July 9.

AKRON, July 8.—All major rubber companies are expected to meet the Sears, Roebuck & Co. reduction of 5 per cent on the "Champion" tire by reducing their third-line tires a proportionate amount. Definite decision is expected later.

Coal Cleaning Process to Be Used on Many Fuels

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

EXPERIMENTS WITH A WIDE variety of coals have indicated that the recently perfected Trent coal cleaning process may be found useful in the bulk of the coal producing areas of the world and that it can prepare a wide range of fuels.

Officials of the Trent Process Corporation declare that operations of experimental plants in the Pittsburgh and other districts have been entirely successful and that the construction of full-sized units will follow within a short time.

The Trent process makes use of petroleum as an agent in removing ash and sulphur from coal to produce a more efficient fuel. Several operators in the vicinity of Pittsburgh as well as in other districts have been conducting experiments with this new method for coal cleaning.

The process has also been used to treat anthracite and bituminous coal produced both in this country and in Europe. The resulting cleaned fuels have been put to uses ranging from domestic heating plants to blast furnaces.

Ash Reduced

IN TREATING PITTSBURGH district coals of only mediocre quality, ash has been reduced to 5 per cent and sulphur to one-half per cent. The anthracite of Wales and Germany has had ash reduced to 3 per cent. The low and high volatile coals of Great Britain and Europe have had ash reduced to as low as 2 per cent in some cases.

After treating, the fuels form into small balls consisting of the purified coal amalgamated with oil and containing a small amount of water. Anthracite coals after being treated by the process can be made into a smokeless, non-clinking coal by carbonizing the fuel and then briquetting it.

The anthracite coals taken directly from the Trent process without briquetting are expected to find a market with users of mechanical stokers which are starting to share the popularity of the oil burner in American homes in many localities. The briquette shapes will find a domestic market for use in fireplaces and as furnace fuel and an industrial market as locomotive and blast furnace fuel.

New Bituminous Markets

THE POSSIBILITY OF TAPPING additional domestic markets for bituminous coal fields is seen in the development of new smokeless fuels by the use of the Trent process. In doing this the finer portion of bituminous coal which has been treated by the Trent method is subjected to low temperature distillation in Leonard ovens and is then combined with coarser Trent process coal. The mixture is again carbonized in other Leonard ovens.

The resulting briquettes compare closely to anthracite. Varying types of this fuel can be obtained from the process. In treating bituminous coal in this manner, gas and tar oils are produced which are reused as amalgamating oils in the Trent process.

Interest in Europe

WHILE THE BULK of the work on the Trent process has been carried out in this country, the success of results here has been responsible for widespread interest in the process in Europe. Officials of the Trent Process Corporation believe that development work here will be followed by similar steps abroad.

Kitty Offered $500,000 to Marry Store Owner

CHAPTER XI.

It did hurt me to turn Peter down—no man was ever more sincere in a proposal.

And yet I couldn't see myself the wife of a plumber, living on his weekly wages, depending on his jobs, and at best making a home in a stuffy little apartment.

There would be no trips, no parties and gay times, no opening nights at the theater, no night clubs—just getting meals and waiting for Peter to come home, over and over.

I had expected that Peter would make a scene when I refused him, but he did nothing of the sort.

"Well, Kitty," he said slowly, as he put the ring back in the little plush box and dropped it into his pocket, "there was a time when I was dead sure we would be married, but after you began to go with that rich chap, the Parsons man, I wasn't so sure about it."

I couldn't think of anything to say to this.

"You always craved parties and a gay time and I suppose you will always have them when you marry him. If I didn't know he was a pretty square fellow I'd feel worse about it—if I could feel any worse than I do——"

"Oh, Peter—don't talk like that—and the world is so full of nice girls—girls who would make you a much better wife than ever I could."

Peter's mouth twisted into a rather wry smile as he shook his head.

"There's something queer about that, Kitty—the world isn't full of girls at all—there's only one and I'm not lucky enough to get her."

"Nonsense Peter."

WISHES HER LUCK

"All right, I'll just wait around and if ever you are unhappy or need me for anything—"

I clasped his hand and in an impulsive moment I kissed him.

He held me a moment and managed to force a little laugh as he broke away.

"I guess I'm kissing another man's girl—so long, and all the luck in the world!"

I watched him as he walked out.

I wanted to cry, but just why I felt like that I couldn't quite understand.

Why should I feel like crying over having to explain to Peter Thompson that I wouldn't marry him? What girl would think of marrying a plumber when a handsome and wealthy society man was so madly in love with her?

Thad would be home before long. I had saved enough by this time to get some new dresses and I got them from Mrs. Miers at cost. Better yet,

Synopsis

Katherine Mason, a dress model, is convinced that the chief aim of every girl should be to play around and have a gay time. For this reason she refuses to marry Peter Thompson, a poor young man, and hopes to marry Thad Parsons, wealthy and a society chap. A weekend with some of Thad's wealthy friends makes Katherine more eager than ever for a life of nothing-to-do, with plenty of money for luxuries.

Now Go On

Mrs. Miers knew exactly what dresses suited me, and I felt that Thad would be delighted with me when he saw me in my new outfits.

I received a telephone call while at work.

"Hello, beautiful," were his first words.

Thad's voice.

How it thrilled me!

"Welcome to our city," I answered, trying to keep my voice steady.

"Shall we have a celebration with our reunion, dearest?" he asked.

"Try to escape from me," I told him, with a laugh, as if I were joking. But I wasn't joking. I meant every word of it. That Parsons would never escape me if I could help it.

SEES MOLLY

I wore an evening wrap when he called that night and when I came from the ladies' room at the swell hotel without the wrap and in one of my new dresses, Thad's eyes fairly popped. As soon as he got a chance he whispered, "You perfect doll!"

"But dolls are stuffed with sawdust, Thad," I protested.

"And you are stuffed with sunshine and vitality and love and beauty."

"Adjectives!" I said to that. "Truths!"

He pressed my hand for a moment and turned to order for us.

I caught sight of Molly Parsons just then. It surprised me for I had no idea that she ever went to such ritzy hotels as this one.

I nodded and smiled at her and then the man with her, who had sat with his back to me, turned to see who it was that Molly was recognizing.

The man was Maj. Boyden!

He bowed and Thad saw and recognized him.

"Do you know him very well, Kitty?" Thad asked.

"I know that he is an unusual man, Thad," I said and told him honestly my experience with the major. I told how Dolly Hawkins had dug him up for me to be my "sugar daddy" and how, when he learned that I was no gold digger and no plaything, he respected me and that ended everything.

"I know, dear, you'd be like that. And who could blame Boyden or any other man for falling in love with you," was Thad's comment.

I couldn't guess how Molly met Maj. Boyden and I decided to tell her about him—tell her that he was married, so that she wouldn't make a fool of herself.

I had a wonderful time with Thad that evening. At the revival of a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, which Thad admired and which I had never heard before, we met Curt and Susie Lawlor. To my surprise, Arline Sargent was with them.

ARLINE IS GRACIOUS

We all went to a supper club after the performance. I found out that Arline and Thad were well acquainted. Arline had been inclined to be snooty to me at the Lawlor party—the only one there who acted that way to Viola and myself—but this evening she seemed to put herself out to be gracious to me. She danced quite a lot with Curt Lawlor and also a couple times with Thad. I also danced with Mr. Lawlor. He and Thad were busy dancing with all three of us. I noticed that Curt and Arline were careful not to show the deep interest in each other that they did down at the week-end party at the Lawlor's Long Island place.

Thad left me at my home as usual—and, as usual, I was supremely happy. Thad had kissed me and murmured sweet words about how good it was to be back with me.

I'm not going to lose you, sweetheart, be sure of that—see you Wednesday," were his parting words.

I thought to myself that he could be good and sure I wouldn't let him lose me.

When I got to the shop the next day I didn't have to bring up the subject of Maj. Boyden to Molly, for, the first chance she had, she asked, "How come you know Mr. Boyden?"

I told her that I had met him with Dolly Hawkins and Mr. Malvern.

"Don't waste your time on him, dearie," I advised, "he's married."

"Don't worry about me—I know all of my vegetables," was Molly's reply.

I said no more about it.

There was to be a fashion show. The Miers concern was to have a big part in it and the models would be there wearing the Miers creations. We were decidedly excited over it because it would be held in Grand Central Palace and all sorts of people would be there.

OFFERED A FORTUNE

Of course, a great many buyers asked me to go out with them. Some were nice about it when I thanked them and told them that I never did that. A few would get cross and some would complain to Mr. Miers who would laugh them out of it. I have often heard him say, "My models are good models, if you get what I mean."

There was a Mr. Anson from Cleveland, who was one of our best customers. He owned a chain of big stores in many cities. Twice he had asked me to go out and was never sore when I refused.

At this time he made such a big purchase that even the Miers were excited. Then he called me over. I expected the same old request. It wasn't quite the same.

"Would you go out with me if we had Mr. and Mrs. Miers along?" he asked. Mrs. Miers was standing near us and she secretly nodded to me. As I had no appointment that night I agreed.

This Mr. Anson was no more than 40 and rather distinguished appearing. We had all that we could do to keep from laughing when fat Mr. and Mrs. Miers danced together. While they were dancing he leaned over to me and grabbed my hand.

I groaned, inwardly. The same old mush, the same old line, I thought.

"Kitty," he said, "you know that I want you. To convince you of it I will first settle half a million dollars on you. What do you say to that?"

(What is Kitty's answer to Anson's amazing proposal? Read tomorrow's absorbing instalment.)

DAILY SHORT STORY

The Red Dot

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Slayer Is Killed in Gun Battle With Police

They were whispering that Dr. Bolton had killed his aged uncle, and at the same time they were whispering that they couldn't believe it.

The coroner's inquest was to be held right away.

Dr. Bolton appeared to be quite calm.

If it had been Tom Coombs who had killed old Amos Bolton there would not have been so much surprise, for it was no secret at all that the wealthy Amos Bolton despised his nephew, Tom.

However, Tom hadn't been permitted to enter the Amos Bolton house for several years and Dr. Bolton attended the old man in his illness.

Amos Bolton had the income from quite a fortune, an immense fortune for such a small town as Welton. The fortune had come to Amos through his wife, or the income from it. The old man couldn't spend the income or at least he had no desire to do so. He lived comfortably, in luxury, for that matter.

When Amos passed on, this fortune was to be divided equally between Dr. Bolton and Tom Coombs, both nephews of the old man.

Quarrels start over trifles. The old man's pet dog had jumped up on Tom, playfully, and left muddy paw marks on Tom's brand new light gray trousers. Tom promptly kicked the dog.

The old man had been friendly with Tom up to this time, but that ended the friendship. He ordered Tom off his premises and told him never to come there again.

Tom had a small insurance and real estate office in the town, a business that kept him going, but did not provide any luxuries.

SUSPICIOUS PERSON

Dr. Bolton and his uncle were always friendly. The old man was proud of this nephew. Bolton was 40 and had a son 17.

The fact that Dr. Bolton was known to be with old Amos Bolton at 3 o'clock and that at 3:15 the nurse came up from the kitchen and found the old man dead, strangled, with a bath robe cord knotted about his neck, made it appear bad for the doctor.

When they held the inquest, Ned Bolton came with his father. The coroner, Daniel Osgood, and the local chief of police tried to keep the boy from attending.

It was going to be a tough place for the boy, they felt, for they were going to pin the murder of old Amos on Ned's father.

"I'm going to come in," the boy said.

They protested and then told him that he could not.

"Is it a private inquest?" Ned asked.

"Yes," said Chief Randlett.

"Then I'm coming as a witness. I drove father back when the nurse telephoned and I went in with him, you know that, Chief, for you were there when we came."

They had to let young Ned Bolton attend the inquest.

The nurse told her story.

"Yes, it was 3 o'clock," she said, "when Dr. Bolton came down to the basement kitchen and said that Mr. Bolton was resting comfortably and on the way to recovery."

"Did he leave at once?" asked Coroner Osgood.

"Yes, sir. I saw him drive away."

"How do you know that it was 3 o'clock?"

POLICE CHIEF QUESTIONED

"I went up to see if old Mr. Bolton was all right. He seemed to be sleeping. I looked at the clock and it was just 3 o'clock."

"What next?"

"I went back down to the kitchen to finish eating. I had been too busy to have luncheon at noon and Mrs. James got me some chops, toast and coffee. I talked with Mrs. James for a little while and went up stairs. I thought that old Mr. Bolton was sleeping unusually sound and went over to see him, when I discovered that he was dead—and the heavy silk cord of his bathrobe that had been over the foot of the bed was knotted around his neck. The first thing I did was to telephone for Dr. Bolton and then I telephoned for Chief of Police Randlett."

"Why?"

"Why? Because old Mr. Bolton had been murdered—he couldn't have tied that cord around his neck himself."

"Are you sure he couldn't?"

"Certainly, he was too feeble. He could scarcely lift a book when he wanted to read. . . ."

Chief Randlett was questioned.

"I got over there in about three minutes after Miss Jones telephoned me," he said.

Miss Jones was the nurse.

"I found the old man as she described, she had not removed the cord. I did remove it, it was tied in three hard knots. The old man was dead, I was sure. Dr. Bolton arrived then—he examined the body and said——"

"I came in with him, chief," Ned Bolton broke in.

Chief Randlett frowned at the boy, but the coroner nodded.

"Yes, the doctor's boy came in with him. The doctor said the old man was dead. I went down and talked with Mrs. James, the housekeeper, who is badly crippled with rheumatism. The nurse hadn't gone downstairs again and Mrs. James didn't know what had happened. She said the nurse had been there a while eating, and I saw the dishes on the kitchen table."

"What did you do?"

"Notified you and sent for our county attorney."

Coroner Osgood called Dr. Bolton then.

"Could the dead man have tied that cord about his neck himself?" was the first question.

"By no means."

"Was he suffering, so that suicide would have been desirable?"

"No, he was not suffering any pain, he was in an anemic condition and weak, but had no pain."

"You left at 3 o'clock?"

"Yes."

"Where did you go?"

"Home."

"Did you stop on the way?"

"No—yes, for a moment, at the corner of Maple street. Tom Coombs, my cousin, stooped me and asked after his uncle. I told him about him, told him that the old man was sure to get well, that he had good vitality and was already showing that he had overcome the anemic tendency."

"What then, doctor?"

"Tom said that he was glad, for he bore no ill will to the old man. Then I went home and was reading some letters in my office when the nurse telephoned me."

"You think it was murder?"

"I can see no reason for thinking otherwise."

"You were the last man to see him alive?"

"Evidently not."

"So far as anybody knows, you were, weren't you?"

"Probably, so far as is known now."

DOCTOR GETS ANGRY

"You will come into quite a fortune by your uncle's death, won't you, doctor?"

"Quite a fortune, yes."

"How long would it take a man to tie the cord around the old man's neck and kill him?"

"Only a few minutes, perhaps two minutes."

"You had time enough and opportunity enough, didn't you?"

"Are you trying me for murder or holding an inquest as to the cause of this man's death?" the doctor demanded, suddenly, red with anger.

"Finding the cause of a man's death often develops who caused it, doctor. I am only working in a line of duty."

"The nurse stepped up to the room," she said; after I left and Mr. Bolton was sleeping.

The nurse was called back.

"Are you sure that old Mr. Bolton was sleeping when you stepped up and looked at him and looked at the clock?" she was asked.

"He seemed to be sleeping.

"Couldn't he have been strangled then and you not suspect it?"

"I—I suppose he could. I didn't go over to the bed, the doctor had just left."

"Then you are not sure that the old man was living when Dr. Bolton left?"

"Why—why no, I—I suppose not."

"And you went back downstairs and finished your luncheon and did not discover that the old man had been murdered until 15 minutes later—how do you know it was 15 minutes later?"

"I looked at the clock."

"I shall have to ask you, Doctor, to remain within the town limits for the time being," the coroner said.

"I have some testimony," young Ned Bolton said.

"It isn't necessary," the coroner said, hastily and kindly, for he pitied the boy.

"How do you know it isn't necessary until you hear it?"

Ned Bolton was told to tell his story:

NED TESTIFIES

"I had a date at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. When I went back with father after the nurse called him, and went into the room I saw that it was only 20 minutes past 3. My wrist watch gave the time as 10 minutes of 4. The clock in the room is a modern electric clock and I couldn't see how it could be half an hour wrong, so I stepped up and took a close look at it. The red dot showed."

"What do you mean by that?" asked the coroner.

"If the current is turned off on an electric clock even for a fraction of a second, a red dot appears at the top to let you know that the current has been off."

"Well, what is important about that?"

"Someone might have pulled out the cord plug for a while, five minutes or so, to make an alibi. At any rate I thought so, and pulled out the switch plug and the cord. I took it to the city last night and had the bakelite plug examined, powdered and photographed for finger prints. The finger-print expert is in town now, looking for finger prints to match, he is to telephone me here."

"This sounds like a lot of poppycock, Ned—you been reading detective novels and—"

The telephone bell jangled, there was a call for Ned. He listened for a moment, then said, "Thanks, watch his office."

Ned turned to the chief of police.

"They're Tom Coombs' finger prints—he ought to explain how they got there, since he wasn't supposed to go into Amos Bolton's house, ever," Ned said.

Tom Coombs put up a fight when they tried to arrest him and was killed in the exchange of shots.

An Opportunity to Save

Bids on Garbage Removal Confirm Wisdom of Director Maits' New Policy.

Pittsburgh has had to pay heavily—too heavily, some think—for the removal of garbage and rubbish.

A new bidder entered the lists last year when the contract was about to be made, a bidder who offered to do the work so much more cheaply than the companies that had previously done it that it was disappointing that the bid was rejected.

The low bid was rejected because the company that made it was not equipped to begin the work at once, as was required.

Director Maits, of the Health Department, accordingly adopted a new policy this year—the policy of awarding the contract so long in advance of the time when it was to go into effect that any responsible concern that felt it could underbid the old companies might have a chance to show what it could do.

The wisdom of the new plan was confirmed yesterday when bids were opened and it was found that the Modern Service Company was willing to remove garbage and rubbish under a three-year contract for $960,000 less than the holders of the present contract asked.

The taxpayers would appreciate such a saving.

Mayor Kline's Ovation

How It Is to Be Regarded Depends on the Attitude of Those Who Applauded Him.

The grand jury yesterday followed up its indictment of Mayor Kline, charged with misdemeanor on 26 counts, with a general presentment in which it said it had found more than 4,000 instances in which purchases were made for the city in violation of the law, and that the practice was well known to the Mayor.

Notwithstanding the serious charges against Mayor Kline he was given an ovation when he attended the City Council meeting Monday. He said it showed he still had thousands of friends.

How the demonstration is to be regarded depends on the attitude of those who applauded him so enthusiastically.

If they are convinced he is innocent, their loyalty is admirable.

But if, on the other hand, they are for him regardless of whether he is guilty or innocent, the matter has another aspect.

It is an ominous thing for Pittsburgh if a large section of the citizenship place blind loyalty to a political boss above loyalty to the city.

Fortunately there is good reason to believe the audience in the council chamber was made up largely of city employes and was not fairly representative of the citizenship.

An Imaginary Tour

Lawrenceville Girls' Trip to Europe in Fancy May Be As Enjoyable as a Real Trip.

"Ever let the fancy roam; pleasure never is at home," said Keats in a poem extolling the pleasures of the imagination.

We are reminded of it by the news that the Girls' Reserve of the Lawrenceville Y. W. C. A. will start an imaginary trip to Europe tomorrow.

They begin the tour with a basket picnic at Schenley Park. Crossing the pond will represent the voyage across the Atlantic. Thereafter, during the summer, various ingenious schemes and stratagems will be employed to take the travelers to the countries that are to be explored and studied. Arrangements have even been made to bring the girls home loaded with souvenirs of the lands visited.

If their fancies are vivid enough the tour may be as enjoyable as a real trip would be.

A keen imagination gives a rich internal life to many a person whose existence otherwise would be insufferably dull.

Radio Reduces Crime

If Additional Police Scout Cars Are Needed, the City May Save Money by Buying Them.

Director Clark, of the Department of Public Safety, and Supt. Walsh, of the Bureau of Police, unite in a testimonial to the value of the police radio system, installed on the recommendation of the Sun-Telegraph.

The city's crime statistics for the two months in which the system has been in operation disclose a sharp reduction in felonies and misdemeanors, especially in automobile thefts. Stolen cars have in many cases been quickly recovered, thanks to the quick spreading of the alarm.

Director Clark is so impressed by the usefulness of the new system that he says he will ask Council for additional scout cars equipped with radio receivers for the use of the police.

Crime costs Pittsburgh a vast amount of money. If the additional scout cars are needed, the city may save money by purchasing them.

Archery in Pittsburgh

The New Club for Boys and Girls May Help to Preserve Our Reputation as the Home of Champions.

At the fiftieth annual or jubilee tournament of the National Archery Association, at Chicago last October, a Pittsburgh woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Roberts, shot an arrow 299 yards, one foot, two inches. That is the greatest distance that an arrow was ever shot by a woman.

Pittsburgh has had a number of archery champions. James S. Jiles brought laurels to the city for a number of years through his prowess with the bow and arrow.

The Tom Thumb Archery Club for boys and girls, which the Sun-Telegraph is now organizing, will carry on its activities in a congenial atmosphere, and no doubt will help to preserve Pittsburgh's reputation as the home of champions.

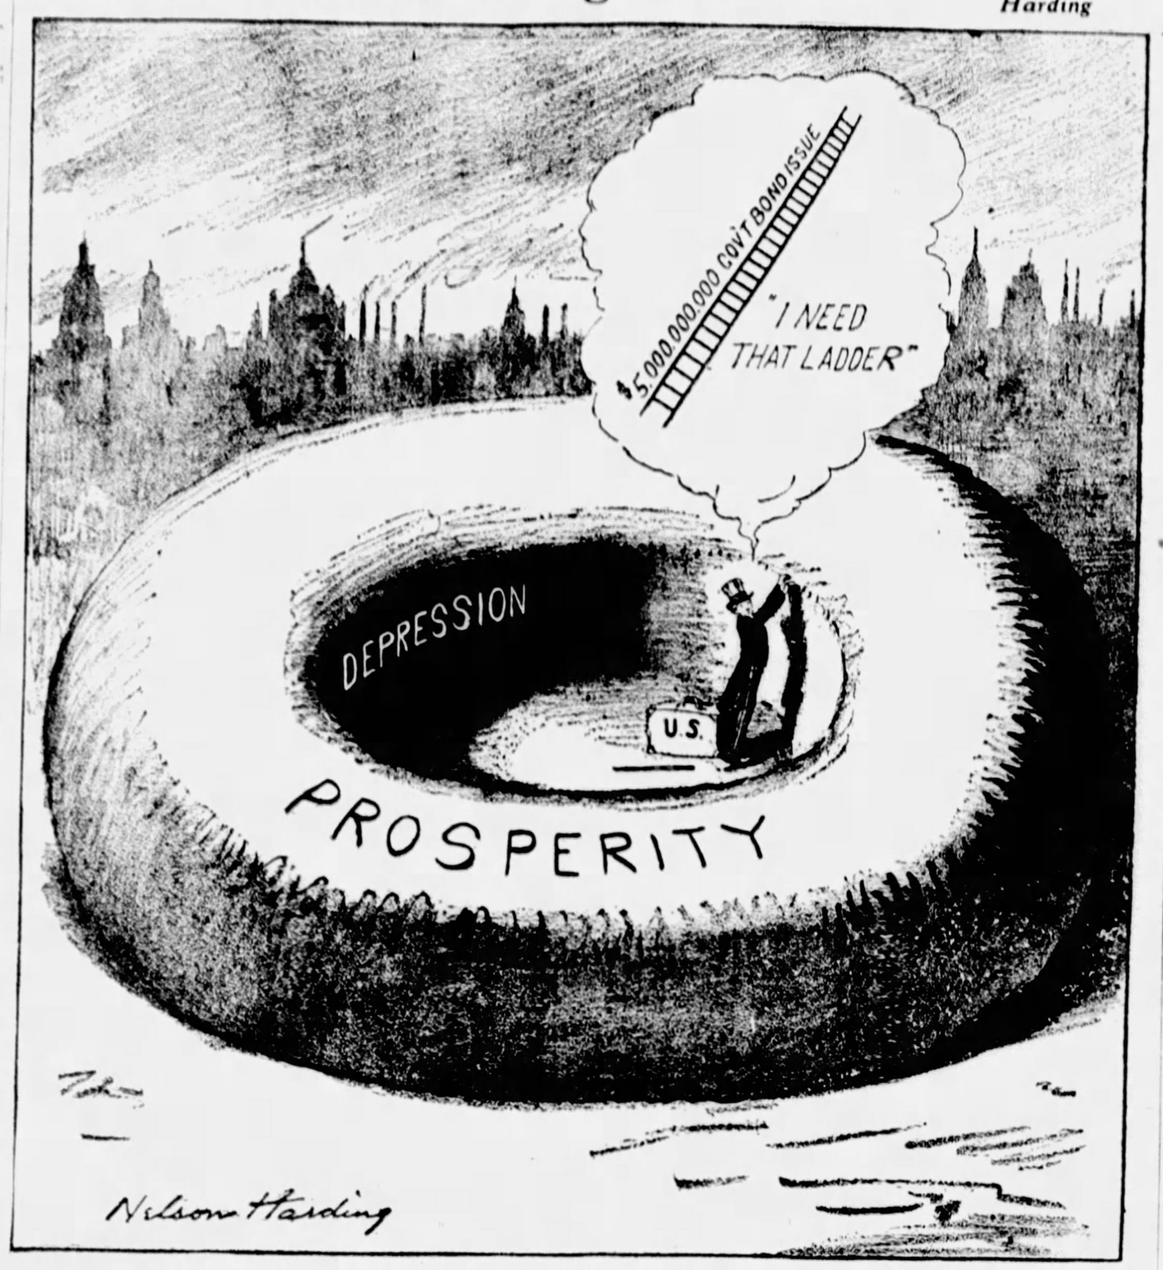
The Hole in the Doughnut -:- By Nelson Harding



It didn't seem that Uncle Sam
Could get in such an awkward place
As that in which he finds himself.
But such, however, is the case.

Surrounded by abundance, he
Is faced by plenty all about.
But there is something that he lacks—
A ladder that will help him out.

Taxes Are Always 'Big'

But SOMEBODY Must Pay for Government Expenses and Official Extravagance.

AN OLD BRITISH CARTOON ON TAXES.

This cartoon printed 134 years ago in London, when the younger Pitt was running British affairs, shows the British lion changed to a humble donkey, loaded down with the weight of taxes piled upon his back. Pitt kneeling shows him a few more tax bills.

Britishers of today, and Americans also that pay heavy income tax, can sympathize with the British donkey, although taxes that the British paid in those old days would seem a mere joke in the taxation system of today. One month's taxes in England now would provide several times over for all the taxes that the British paid in 1797.

However, taxes must be paid, the government must be supported. And the British, while they complained at the beginning of the last century, are grateful now to William Pitt. He spent their money financing on the continent those that were fighting Napoleon, BUT HE KEPT NAPOLEON OUT OF ENGLAND.

And after Napoleon's overthrow at the Battle of Waterloo, when machinery driven by steam, and railroads came, the British forgot all their tax worries and entered upon an age of prosperity and wealth never dreamed of.

Perhaps somebody will discover something, today or soon, that will give the world relief that it needs.

In all of their enterprises men use POWER.

They use water power, steam power, electric power, horse power, man power.

Human beings should have been relieved from heavy labor long ago by the use of machinery and electricity. Unfortunately, human beings are cheap, machinery and electric power are dear, and the freeing of men from physical labor progresses slowly.

It will come, however, and according to experienced engineers, the Diesel engine now in its infancy, may before long give to the people of the world the power that they need, at a nominal price.

The farmer in America, where we seem to have "too much oil," may soon buy for the price of a small automobile an engine that will give him all the power for his farm and electric light for his house and barn that he can use, for a nominal yearly consideration. That will help the oil situation.

The electric power companies, possessing a monopoly at present, and using it profitably, should look ahead and get ready for that future time.

But monopolies make it a habit NOT to look ahead.

Railroads saw automobile trucks and automobile buses coming and their only thought was to get permission to charge higher rates. They got it, and then the motor trucks and motor buses, very cheap, took their business away from them.

The power companies are concentrated on high rates, which is natural, since the officers are paid by the STOCKHOLDERS, not by the public, and the business of officers is to make profit for stockholders.

Before long, perhaps, it will occur to the power companies to imitate the great automobile concerns that have built up their fortunes by giving "the most possible" for THE LOWEST POSSIBLE COST.

There is profit and safety in that, and some of the big power men, including Matthew Sloan, head of the Edison Power Company in New York, appear to realize that SECURITY, PROFIT, PERMANENCE, are to be found in lower costs.

Marry-Go-Round

Coddled Husbands

The average woman is a born coddler—and the man she loves is her first and most pitiful victim.

* * *

If she happens to be childless, her husband is a marked man and as helpless in her hands as a prize kitten.

* * *

A feminine "coddler" can take a hard-boiled he-man and transform him into a soft-boiled husband in a few months. She undermines his stamina, robs him of his self-reliance and deliberately turns him into a dependent who cannot find his own razor, open his own eggs or remember his appointment with the dentist.

When a man starts out in life as a coddled son, many and bitter are the surprises in store for him.

* * *

Coddled sons are sore afflictions as husbands; for it takes years to make them realize that the earth does not revolve around them and the sun rise and set for their especial amusement and comfort. It is really unfair to start a boy out with such a handicap; it make him "soft" and susceptible to slight, and it takes such a lot of hard knocks to make him readjust his viewpoint.

* * *

But a woman who takes a grown-up he-man and deliberately reduces him to a helpless dependent, because she won't permit him to do anything for HIMSELF, practically extinguishes him!

* * *

She covers him with kindness, smothers him with attentions, paralyzes his initiative and shatters his self-reliance.

Like a hen with one chick, she hovers over him, so that he can't get out of her sight and find a WORM for himself. And if he did, she'd probably take it away from him and tell him it was "bad for him."

* * *

She squeezes the ambition out of him with her "devotion" and snuffs the courage out of him with her "protective" flutterings. She reduces him to a petted pulp—and then she makes him believe that he has married the "one woman in the world," to whom he "owes everything."

* * *

Oh, yes. The dangerous woman in a man's life is not the wild woman who breaks his heart, but the Devoted Angel who softens his muscle and breaks his spirit.

* * *

Nothing in this world can stand being "coddled" except a woman and an egg—and the egg should be a perfectly Good Egg!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 8.—The newspaper reporter's job has lost a lot of the glamour so ably fictionized by Richard Harding Davis and Jesse Lynch Williams. Time saving inventions, such as the airplane, radio and wireless, have stripped the background of much of its delirious tension.

Floyd Gibbons is one of the last of the vanishing dare devils of the Fourth Estate. In other days the reporter was the rollicking roamer, the essence of vie de boheme. His job is still interesting and important, but stiffly standardized in a mechanical age.

He no longer sets off on those forlorn expeditions with his own ingenuity as the sole asset. It is scarcely possible that another Henry M. Stanley would invade the "green hells" of Africa and stumble upon a lost explorer with the nonchalant query: "Dr. Livingstone, I believe."

Today Dr. Livingstone would be in constant touch with civilization. His danger would be insignificant. A New York reporter lived a year in a shifting Arctic wasteland heroically but with no torturing discomfort. Phil Payne's flying bravely into eternity was a reckless urge and not an assignment.

The reporter looks upon the copy reader's job as a colorless nightmare. Yet more than the reporter today he is in the thick of things. Through his fingers hourly drift the high lights of a world in upheaval. He is only a split second behind every catastrophe on the globe.

The copy reader in turn looks upon the proofreader's task as not a job but an affliction. In the newspaper world they are often the two most unpopular connections. Yet in many ways they require more intelligence, tact and quick decision than the reporter.

Furthermore, the Damoclean sword hangs over their heads continually. If a reporter fails on an assignment, he can resort to excuses that seem plausible. But when copy readers or proofreaders permit glaring errors they have no alibi. They must look for another job.

* * *

A soapbox Communist was exhorting to a group in Madison Square. At length he became Darwinian. "Man descends from monkeys," he shouted. "And monkeys descend from soap boxes," shouted an Irish copper, yanking him from his pedestal.

* * *

A grewsome story comes on a postcard from the Bowery. A bum asked a passerby for a dime, explaining he had lost his false teeth.

"How can you replace them for a dime?" he was asked.

"I'll get a new set out of the barrel at the morgue," he replied.

* * *

* * *

And while gliding through West Forty-ninth street I nearly collided with a lady stepping from a limousine. She was such a stunner I stopped in my tracks in frank admiration. Continuing a short piece I looked back and she was walking hurriedly toward me. And did I sneak home! Nobody's going to frame me for flirting.

* * *

Incidentally, New York's cross streets in that pellucid twilight peculiar to the metropolis appear to become suddenly dignified. At the end of each is the blazing glow of a dying sun. The sidewalks have cleared of their spectacular follies. There is no lunatic motor jangle. People walk along leisurely, life thaws out and suddenly becomes warmly jolly—does this begin to sound screwie to you, too? Anyway, what I'm getting at is that Manhattan twilights are grand.

* * *

Sitting with Phil Simms on the roof of the old Majestic one violet dusk he recalled the thought of an ancient philosopher I had never heard before: "Wherever I am at twilight I always feel I'd like to remain the rest of my life."

* * *

But of all twilights those in Holland, lasting during July and August until after 10 p. m., win my vote. Retiring one evening at 9:30 at the Amstel in Amsterdam I read a 10-day old New York newspaper without artificial light whatever. I don't know the why of all this twilight twittery. Maybe I'm in some sort of twilight sleep.

TELEVISION'S MARCONI

By Archibald Henderson

We have heard comparatively little of John Lozie Baird in this country. But then there seems no reason to doubt that he it was who first enabled man to "see through a brick wall." For half a century preceding Baird's successful demonstration of television, scientists in many countries had labored to reach this visionary goal. At the time of Graham Bell's invention of the telephone, more than 50 years ago, some imaginative person, thrilled by the thought of hearing at a great distance, prophetically remarked: "We shall be seeing at a distance yet." This prohecy has been realized, although much still remains to be done to make television generally available to the masses as are now available the telegraph, the telephone and the radio.

John Lozie Baird, the son of a Scottish Presbyterian minister, was born at Helensburg. During the schoolboy stage, he gave evidence of a markedly inventive turn of mind. Like many boys of the day, he set up a private telephone exchange, connecting him with four other boys. For a time he tinkered with an antiquated motor car, which gratified his mechanical instincts. Somewhat later he pursued his scientific studies at the Royal Technical College and at Glasgow University.

After serving for a time at a motor works, with excessively long hours, he took up a post under the Scottish Electricity Commission as assistant superintendent of the Clyde Valley Electrical Power Company. All through the period of the World War he worked on the machines which supplied power and light to the munitions factories and shipyards of the Clyde. Repeated attacks of ill-health interrupted every business he went into, and finally the doctors told him that he must abandon forever the thought of a business career.

Baird now turned to individual scientific research, which was to lead him to one of the great scientific achievements of the age. So successful was his research into the problem of television that it was not long before he had something highly interesting to show for his pains. Before an invited audience, he gave an exhibition in a room over a shop in Queen's Arcade, Hastings. At this time, he transmitted wave shadows from a transmitter to a receiving apparatus. In this, he had been anticipated by Jenkins, the American inventor, working along somewhat different lines. But, although it was a tiny step toward the goal, it was the beginning of great things. In Bridges & Tiltman's Master Minds of Modern Service, the authors express the belief that that first successful experiment will be associated in history with the first electric light and the flight of the Wright brothers.

The mechanism set up by Baird was of the simplest character, and made out of homely, familiar materials. Baird's apparatus was made out of an old tea chest and an empty biscuit box. The projection lens was a bulls-eye lens costing about 20 cents, the driving mechanism was a toy electric motor which cost less than a dollar and a half.

Baird had a long way to go yet, from the transmission of a flickering image of a Maltese cross, to the spanning of the Atlantic by television, which he accomplished in February, 1927. In commenting upon his demonstration, the New York Times said: "His successes deserves a rank with Marconi's sending of the letter S across the Atlantic. Baird's fame among inventors is now worldwide. And it is confidently predicted that in the near future he will give to the world successful television in the home."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You are not keen for taking responsibility.

Rather than burden yourself with details and the constant care to carry them out you prefer to occupy an inferior position.

You give your services for a certain specified time and after that you want to feel free in thought and action.

You think that the persons who burden themselves with the anxiety and watchful attention that a better job entails, are missing a whole lot in life.

But the time will come when you will change your opinion and then you will become sour and sore because you have not a greater and more responsible position.

You envy the person above you, and you frequently refer to his job as a matter of good luck and pull.

But the fact is that you have never taken life seriously enough.

You have worried sometimes about your future, but soon dispelled the doubts you entertained as to results of your course.

You cannot expect to get to the top in anything worthwhile unless you are willing to sacrifice pleasure, comfort and time to attain distinction.
